AIR 'FOG EYE' PERILS BRITAIN

Nazis Build Fleet Of 'Terror' Planes

By ROBERT G. NIXON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Nov. 16 (INS)—Squadrons of substratosphere warplanes equipped with "aerial periscopes" form the latest "terroristic weapon" possessed by Germany, according to neutral diplomatic quarters in London.

Only today am I permitted to reveal this news to the outside world. When I attempted to send this report to New York nine days ago, on November 7, I was informed by the censor that the dispatch had been "killed."

Today, however, authorities informed me that the dispatch could be sent.

According to the neutral diplomatic circles here, German scientists are credited with having developed the aerial periscope, an implement which, it was stated, may revolutionize the entire strategy of warfare in the skies.

The periscope, according to these well informed sources, is devised to penetrate the deep fog and "zero" visibility which often enshrouds the British Isles in winter.

USE INFRA-RED RAY

The secret implement is said to use infra-red rays to penetrate fog and clouds, reflecting back a view of the terrain in high magnification on a glass mounted on the bottom of the plane's fuselage, enabling the pilot to obtain a view of the ground from a point high above the clouds.

Furthermore, it was said, the Germans secretly have been building a fleet of substratosphere planes with pressure-sealed cabins in which an atmospheric condition similar to that prevailing at 8000 feet can be maintained

MILITARY MEN SCOFF

According to information in London, it is planned to navigate these planes at 30,000 feet or more, thereby gaining a higher altitude than ordiary pursuit planes can attain.

Air and military circles are inclined to scoff at the practicability of such an implement, pointing out that effective bombing operations must be carried out at an altitude of less than 20,000 feet, and then under conditions of fair ground visibility.

AL CAPONE FREE; NOW IN HIDING

LEWISBURG, Pa., Nov. 16 (AP)—The federal government freed Al Capone today, after seven years in prison, but the whereabouts of the prohibition era ganglang czar remained secret.

His release from federal custody to his relatives was announced at Washington by federal prison officials.

At Lewisburg, however, watchers who waited outside the northeastern penitentiary gates from before dawn until the announcement from Washington hours later said the release must have taken place at a rendezvous outside the small town.

At least part of the secrecy-shrouded trip of "Scarface" Al and an escort of federal men across the country from the federal correctional institution near Los Angeles, to which he was transferred from Alcatraz, was made by train.

Officials of the Pensylvania Railroad said the one-time bootleg syndicate boss came into Pennsylvania on a train from St. Louis.

Queries at the penitentiary brought replies that Warden Henry C. Hill was "out of town."

That gave rise to the theory that prison officials had avoided attracting attention to Capone by meeting his escort outside the city, accepting him into official custody, then releasing him to relatives.

One of these probably was his brother, Ralph Capone, with whom it has been said Capone might live for a short time in Villanova, a Philadelphia suburb.

There is a hospital near there and Capone has been under treatment for paresis, from which he suffered during the last several years of his sentence for violating income tax laws.

The sentences were for ten years and one year. They were shortened for good behavior.

Nazis Vow They Won't Talk Peace Until Britain Is Beaten

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Nov. 16—Nazi Germany's real war aim is the destruction of British supremacy in Europe and throughout the world, authoritative Berlin quarters declared today as the last nail was hammered into the coffin of the Queen Wilhelmina-King Leopold peace offer.

"We take the attitude," a spokesman said, "that Germany will henceforth fight this war to its conclusion—until destruction of British supremacy is complete."

This clear-cut announcement of the Reich's determination to fight the war to a finish was made following delivery to Brussels and The Hague of Chancellor Hitler's polite but firm rejection of the mediation bid on the grounds that Britain and France had "sabotaged" it.

"We no longer talk about peace conditions," the Wilhelmstrasse spokesman declared.

"We intend to show that we are as ready for a victorious war as we formerly were ready for peace.

"From now on, peace conditions can be discussed only when the war is over and Germany is the victor.

"We regard the question of war guilt as already settled.

"The blame lies definitely on the shoulders of Great Britain and France.

Other War News on Pages 14 and 16

"This subject is no longer open to debate. The fault is clearly theirs. Now nothing will be permitted to intervene until victorious war is ours."

The statement was regarded as official notification that Hitler would show himself deaf to any future peace offers.

The spokesman said there was speculation over why Germany did not attack.

"These people assert we need to attack to keep up our spirits, or we must attack the southeast for Von Ribbentrop needs a success to show the Fuehrer," he said.

"We have no fear of attacking, but intend to let military judgment choose the time and not to be goaded into it by foreign propaganda."

JUSTICE BUTLER OF HIGH COURT DIES AT AGE OF 73

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—Associate Justice Pierce Butler of the Supreme Court died today.

The 73-year-old justice entered a hospital for treatment of bladder trouble last summer, and with the exception of two weeks when he was able to return home he had remained there since.

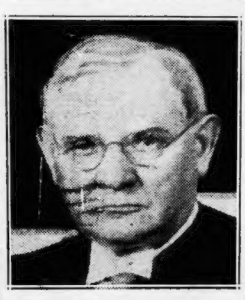
His death meant that President Roosevelt's appointees would be in the majority on the court, as he has named four of those on the nine-man tribunal.

Butler was a Democrat, but officials of the Roosevelt administration had termed him one of the two "conservative" members of the court, the other being Justice James C. McReynolds.

F. D. SENDS CONDOLENCE

In a formal statement, President Roosevelt expressed his regret. He also sent Mrs. Butler a personal note of condolence.

"I have known Justice Butler for a great many years," the statement said, "and I always regarded him as a personal friend. His undoubtedly great ability, his complete frankness in the expression of his philosophy and his honest convictions commanded my respect, and, in common with his many friends, I sincerely regret his untimely passing."



JUSTICE PIERCE BUTLER

DEATH SUDDEN

Although Butler was the third oldest of the justices—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, like McReynolds, is 77—he had been reported in robust health during the term of court which ended last June.

Death came so suddenly that neither his doctor nor members of the family was present. The attending nurse called the doctor.

Major decisions to which Butler dissented last term included rulings holding constitutional the

Revels in Dowd Jail Bared by Ex-Matron

Former Sheriff John F. Dowd's incumbency was a fine thing for his pals and every day was open house at Charles st. jail, the Boston Evening American was told today in an exclusive interview by a former matron, who said she was discharged because she would not contribute money.

Almost every morning, according to the ex-matron's story, the sheriff's house was "Hilarity Hall" and the boys would troop in and tickle "Johnny's" toes to get him out of bed. The ex-matron said she was told these details by the cook and maid, who finally quit, she said, as a result of the high jinks.

WOULDN'T "KICK IN"

The matron, Mrs. Margaret Wilson, now of Hancock st., West End, was dismissed peremptorily five months ago after nearly 20 years' service.

She said this followed her refusal to "kick in for a little pool for Johnny."

"Things all changed badly after Dowd became sheriff," said Mrs. Wilson. "He hadn't even got warm there when the rules and regulations which had been observed for years were changed.

"Previous to his coming it was a rare occasion when a prisoner was allowed a visitor after 4:30 or 5 p. m., and this was only when a mother or father who had to work all day was allowed to call, or when a prisoner's lawyer had been tied up in court and had to come for consultation at night.

EVENING VISITORS

"But after Dowd came, there was visiting and chattering in the visitors' rooms at all hours, sometimes as late as 10:30 or 11 p. m. with lights all blazing.

"Afterward the men and women prisoners were allowed to go back to their cells unguarded, through the dark corridors where the lights had gone off at 9:30.

"It had long been a strict rule that the door between the men's

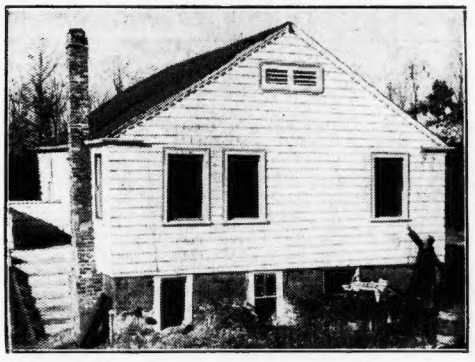
A HOUSE DIVIDED... BY LAW

MR. AND MRS. LAWRENCE WHITE



THE HOUSE OF ERRORS
White Points to Empty Windows

3/5 OF HOUSE HIS IN BUILDING MIXUP

What could be a perfect comedy of errors—if it were not so serious—found Lawrence E. White and his wife living in three-fifths of his house in Evans rd., Middleton, today while the other two-fifths lay doorless and windowless, prey to the wintry winds.

A year ago, White, a disabled war veteran and former commander of the Charles F. Cheever post, Disabled American Veterans, says he contracted with a Lynn building supply company to build a home. For reasons of health he had to live in a country site.

He built the house, a pretty four room cottage, after the company gave him a $1500 mortgage and furnished the materials.

Last February the company, he says, told him the mortgage was due and told him to get a bank mortgage. He tried, was refused and in turn was refused by the Federal Housing Corporation and the Farm Loan Bureau.

Then the company brought eviction proceedings.

Then Ralph Corbell, of Revere, who owns the land adjoining the White home told the latter that his house was on the Corbell land. A survey proved Corbell correct. Two fifths of the White home were over the line. His kitchen and dining room only were on his own land.

Armed with a court order the building company agents evicted White from their two fifths of the cottage under eviction proceedings.

Meanwhile White lives in his three-fifths of the house on which Corbell has given a 10-year lease to help relieve the problem.

2 INDICTED IN PROBE

The Suffolk County Grand Jury, investigating the administration of John F. Dowd as sheriff, today returned two indictments. They charged Charles Hussey, city public works department foreman, and William J. Armstrong, courthouse engineer, with soliciting gratuities from nine Charles st. jail officers for presentation to Dowd.

MAINE MAN FIRES HOME, SLAYS WIFE, 2 SONS AND SELF

SCARBORO, Me., Nov. 16 (AP)—Triple murder and suicide today wiped out the family of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Rowe, whose bodies, with those of their two children, Arthur, 14, and Claire, 13, were found charred and bullet-marked in their burning restaurant home.

The official verdict that Rowe had murdered his family and then killed himself was returned by Medical Examiner William R. Needelman who undertook an immediate autopsy after firemen found a pistol with four exploded cartridges in the ruins of the partly-burned roadside dwelling.

The pistol was found under the body of Rowe, which had fallen upon those of his family.

Deputy Sheriff Maurice H. Davidson and Dr. Needelman said they believed Rowe first killed the others, ignited fuel oil which apparently had been sprayed about the interior of an oil shed off the restaurant kitchen and then fired a shot into his own head. The wife and children had been shot in the head also.

No motive for the shooting was immediately ascertained.

The Rowes conducted a "shore dinner" eating establishment in the building during the summer months. The place is on the Portland-Boston main highway and was known as "Snug Harbor."

ALL FULLY CLOTHED

All four were fully clothed when they met death.

The body of Mrs. Rowe lay face up, her left hand extended as if to encircle the body of Arthur, which lay beside her. Next to Arthur's body lay that of his brother, Claire. Face down, across the body of his wife were Rowe's charred remains.

FIND PISTOL

Deputy Sheriff George R. Bryant found the pistol a little more than a foot away from Rowe's right hand.

Investigating officers said they believed the boys were slain first and that Mrs. Rowe was killed as she rushed into the shed upon hearing the shots which killed the boys.

Ashburn Ouster Irks Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (INS)—The White House today delivered a rebuke to Assistant Secretary of Commerce J. Monroe Johnson for the "abrupt manner" in which he removed Gen. T. Q. Ashburn from the presidency of the government-owned Inland Waterways Corporation which the general headed for 15 years.

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early authorized the following statement to the press:

"The White House is rather disturbed by the abrupt manner in which the action was taken."

General Ashburn told reporters that Johnson had given him "one hour" in which to resign Tuesday. Chester Thompson, former Democratic member of Congress from Rock Island, Ill., was named as his successor.

RECORD RAIN IN PANAMA

PANAMA CITY, Nov. 16 (INS)—Blinding sheets of rain fell for two hours on the Panama isthmus today, setting a record of 6.7 inches of rain in that period. Colon and Cristobal, on the Caribbean side of the Panama canal, were flooded.

PAY FOR PALLBEARERS

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Nov. 16 (AP)—Under the will of Thomas Ryder each of the eight pallbearers received $100 plus one-eighth share in another hundred "for expenses." The same men served at Mrs. Ryder's funeral 12 years ago.

CUPID'S HABEAS CORPUS—Flanked by former Park Commissioner and Mrs. Walter R. Herrick, daughter Eileen appears in Supreme Court, New York, where she was brought from a hospital in response to a writ of habeas corpus. Writ was obtained by lovelorn George Lowther, 3d, who charged she was held prisoner by her parents. Court dismissed writ, ruled the girl is to remain in hospital ten days, after which she may see Lowther.

Court Gives 'Romeo' the Right To Woo and Win His 'Juliet'

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—Dashing George Lowther, III, 30-year-old broker "Romeo," has won the right to see his pretty "Juliet," or even marry her if she wants him—and she says she does.

Love triumphed over parental barriers yesterday in Manhattan's unromantic State Supreme Court, where Lowther had petitioned for a writ of habeas corpus, alleging Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Herrick had kept their daughter Eileen, 20, a "prisoner" to prevent her marriage to him.

Justice Isidor Wasservogel, after questioning everyone concerned, told the parents:

"She is past the age of consent. If she wants to marry this man, she has the right to do so. She ought to listen to her parents' advice, however, but she has civil rights, too, and if she makes a mistake, it's her mistake and her life."

The justice decided Lowther must not attempt to see Eileen for the next 10 days while she remains in a hospital to recuperate from a nervous condition. After that, said the judge in dismissing Lowther's petition, the two may see each other as often as they like.

Lowther's difficulties with the Herricks started when his plan to carry Eileen down a ladder and off to the parson failed.

The Herricks then refused him permission to see their daughter.

Supreme court attaches said it was the first time in their memory that a father had been compelled to produce his daughter under a writ of habeas corpus obtained by a suitor.

The Herricks first appeared in court without their daughter, "but the justice ordered she be produced. Lowther rushed toward her with outstretched arms.

Lowther's attorney asked Miss Herrick, "If you had your liberty, would you marry Mr. Lowther?"

"Yes, sir," she replied.

ECKFELDT NEW HEAD OF YD

Brig.-Gen. Roger W. Eckfeldt of Belmont, of the 51st field artillery brigade of the Massachusetts National Guard, a Boston broker, today was appointed major general commanding the 26th division by Gov. Saltonstall.

Gen. Eckfeldt succeeds Maj.-Gen. Daniel Needham of Newton, whose tenure of office expired at midnight.

Col. William F. Howe of Weston, who was appointed some time ago as deputy commissioner of the state division of unemployment compensation by the Governor, a job he now holds, was appointed to fill Gen. Eckfeldt's present position by Saltonstall.

PRAISE FOR NEEDHAM

A tribute to Gen. Needham was issued by Adjt.-Gen. Edgar C. Erickson by command of the Governor in which the general's rise from a private to the highest state military office was commended.

Gen. Eckfeldt, a graduate of Harvard, enlisted in Battery A of the 1st battalion of the Field Artillery in November, 1909; he served in the war with Mexico and during the World War was a first lieutenant with the 102nd Field Artillery.

He was made a captain Feb. 11, 1918. He is a member of the Massachusetts Military Academy academic board and of the Massachusetts Militardy Service Commission.

WORLD WAR VETERAN

Col. Howe enliated in the National Guard in May, 1914, served on the Mexican border in 1916, and also was a first lieutenant in the World War.

He was appointed a captain Aug. 19, 1918.

Parents Lose Triplet Girls, Separate Home for Each

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 16 (AP)—The six-month-old triplet daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James Stillman may grow up in separate homes.

Frank X. Reller, chief probation officer of the juvenile court, today filed a petition in the court asking the three girls—Laverne, Laura and Lavonne—be made wards of the board of children's guardians. Reller asserted the Stillmans, who have nine other children, are unable to care for the triplets.

The board, then, would decide if the three should go into separate homes if no one could be found willing to take all three.

QUIT RADIO JOB OVER MANSFIELD

Former Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield's "protest" when speaking time over John Shepard's radio station WAAB was given to ex-Governor James M. Curley without Mansfield's knowledge led Lawrence J. Flynn to "quit" the station, the latter testified before the Federal Communications Commission today.

Flynn now is clerk of the Mayflower Broadcasting Corporation, that is seeking to get a Boston outlet on the wave length now allotted to WAAB.

INTRODUCED TOBIN

"When the 1937 mayoralty campaign was going on, in which Curley, Tobin, Foley and Nichols were candidates, Mansfield used to speak Tuesday nights. One Tuesday he looked in the newspapers and found his time that night had been given to Curley.

"He told me, and I talked to Mr. Shepard, and as a result of that long conversation, I resigned."

Flynn explained that in 1934, at Shepard's request, he introduced his boss to Maurice Tobin, then on the Boston school committee. Tobin wanted to put educational programs on WAAB.

Later, he said, the late Patrick J. Campbell, then superintendent of schools, was put on the air and then, at Shepard's request, campbell went with Shepard to Washington on a matter connected with the WAAB license.

TAKES RAP AT BICKFORD

Flynn testified about WAAB programs, and assured the commission that no racially-prejudiced or unfair programs would be broadcast by Mayflower if they get the license. He said there would be no editorials on the air.

Over more protests by Spearman he continued:

"Leland Bickford's speeches over the air made it hard to get business for the station. He said the legislators could be bought for a pound of tea."

TELLS OF ARGUMENT

After a tempestuous scene, it was explained Bickford made that statement at a program in Worcester that was not broadcast and Flynn told how he was standing beside Bickford in the State House later when the legislative committee on rules called the orator to explain his "pound of tea" statement.

"A man named Edward Bacigalupo came up to Bickford and there was a sort of an argument," Flynn said.

On Jan. 14, 1938, when Bacigalupo and Bickford had their "argument" in the State House, blows were exchanged.

Following another lengthy argument, the testimony about tea was stricken from the record by Porter's order.

Jailed After Crashing Auto

Captured by state troopers who overtook a bus which he allegedly boarded after abandoning a stolen automobile, Clyde Smith, 30, of Marlboro, father of two children, was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction today by Judge Frederic Crafts in Waltham District Court.

Smith, who drove the car into a stone wall on the Boston Post road, was given six months for using an automobile without authority and six months for driving under the influence.

According to police, Smith leaped from the car when it struck the wall and haled the bus. He was arrested in Marlboro, where he said he "borrowed" the automobile to hasten to his wife, "expecting the arrival of a baby any minute."

Police said Mrs. Smith is an expectant mother, but the stork's arrival is not due for several months.

Fire in 1812 House Causes $25,000 Loss

FRAMINGHAM, Nov. 16—The historic 1812 house, known to thousands as a restaurant and furnished with priceless antiques, was swept by fire today which caused $25,000 damage.

The night watchman, Gerald S. Harding, 27, was severely cut on the arms and head as he leaped to safety from a glass enclosed porch. His name was placed on the danger list at Framingham Union Hospital. An artery in his left arm was severed.

Breaking out in the boiler room, the fire swept the interior rear section of the 127-year-old structure.

Flames ruined the famous Dickens room and crept into the main dining room of the restaurant. Much of the original wallpaper and woodwork were either burned or stained black by smoke.

Andrew Seiler, owner, said the damage was incalculable because of the intrinsic value of the old building and its contents. He said the restaurant would be closed for several days but would be rebuilt so as to restore the damaged rooms to similate their original appearance.

A truck driver discovered the fire.

The building was first opened just before the outbreak of the War of 1812 as the John Fiske residence. Later it was known as the Brown School. For 25 years, it was owned by the family of the late Edward McSweeney, brother of State Public Safety Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney.

The funeral will be from his home at 6 Sparhawk st., Brighton, at 8 a. m.

HOPKINS SLATED AS NAVY HEAD

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (INS)—New Deal gossip today reported Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins is slated for early promotion to the long vacant cabinet post of Secretary of Navy, in event he recovers sufficiently from a recent illness to undertake the arduous duties of supervising expansion of the American Navy.

President Roosevelt favors Hopkins for the Navy post, New Dealers say, because he desires a trusted adviser and tested "trouble-shooter" to take active charge of the huge naval expansion program. They add Mr. Roosevelt has tested Hopkins, his close personal friend, on many "trouble-shooting" assignments and the one-time relief administrator has come through each time with flying colors.

Federal Loan Administrator Jesse H. Jones, meanwhile, is rumored as the likely successor to Hopkins as Secretary of Commerce, if the latter is promoted to the Navy portfolio. In turn, New Dealers predict, Social Security Board Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer will become the new Federal Loan administrator.

Georgia Court Voids Chain Store Tax

ATLANTA, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Georgia Supreme Court today ruled void the chain store tax levied by the city commissioners of Columbus, declaring the tax to be "discriminatory, confiscatory, arbitrary and unreasonable."

A similar tax was levied by the city of Augusta and a case based on that tax is on its way to the Supreme Court.

Ban Rebuilding on Oil Tragedy Site

CARACAS, Venezuela, Nov. 16 (AP)—Informed quarters said today the Venezuelan government would forbid reconstruction of the stilt-supported shanty town of Lagunillas on Lake Maracaibo, which was destroyed Monday night by a disastrous fire.

The village had long been considered a firetrap, it was said, but efforts to remove the inhabitants to new homes on the shore of the lake had proved futile.

DOWD CHARGES LAID BEFORE GRAND JURY

Attorney Reuben L. Lurie, Boston Bar Ass'n prober, was the first witness called before the grand jury today for testimony regarding alleged graft conditions, job-selling and conspiracy under the administration of John F. Dowd, who resigned as Suffolk county sheriff while under fire.

Co-incident with the jury's action, the district attorney's office learned of champagne parties at the Charles st. jail and was investigating a report that a $1400 polished bar had been built in the sheriff's quarters there.

The bar, it is reported, was removed on the day the Bar Ass'n presented its complaint against Dowd to the Supreme Court.

TELL OF WOMEN; WINE

The district attorney's office was also informed that it was nothing out of the ordinary at the jail for from 50 to 60 visitors to be allowed to enter the jail after regular visiting hours.

Also, jail employes told Dist. Atty. Foley, women visitors smuggled liquor, including champagne, to favorite prisoners and on numerous occasions the guards had to lock the prisoners in their cells after heavy drinking parties.

When Lurie entered the grand jury room he carried records and papers bearing on the bar association's investigation, and affidavits given to him by county employes.

STUDY ALL CONTRACTS

Foley today asked Charles J. Fox, city auditor, and the Finance Commission to expedite their survey of contracts entered into while Dowd was sheriff.

He asked also that an analysis of all supply and work contracts be made, so that each item may be examined.

He said today that indictments of several persons will be sought.

"Don't be surprised," he said, "if the names of certain persons are not among the first batch of indictments we ask for."

Charles A. Hussey, city public works department foreman, went to the office of Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle shortly before the grand jury session opened today.

"TOO LATE," SAYS DOYLE

"You're too late," Doyle said. "You had your chance yesterday."

Hussey was named in Bar Ass'n charges as a co-conspirator with Dowd and William J. Armstrong, courthouse chief engineer, who was charged yesterday with taking $500 from a jail officer who wanted to hold his job.

Again today the district attorney's investigators were seeking Frank "Chick" Doian, Jamaica Plain contractor, for questioning concerning activities during Dowd's regime. He was expected to report to the office this afternoon.

Unusual precautions to guard witnesses ready to testify before the grand jury were taken today. All witnesses waiting to enter the jury chamber were placed in the district attorney's library.

PREVENTS TAMPERING

The corridors surrounding the grand jury room were kept clear of loiterers and the doors to the chamber were locked.

It was evident the district attorney was taking no chance of witness intimidation or tampering.

A City Hospital employe was named as one of the alleged county "bagmen" by witnesses questioned by Doyle today.

He was informed that the employe and several others were given sums of money by job seekers. According to one witness minor job seekers paid varying sums to one of three men.

Those seeking to win, or to hold higher salaried jobs paid off to another set of men, according to the witness.

SEEK FOUR INDICTMENTS

More than 30 persons had been summoned to go before the grand jury as its investigation opened. At least four indictments will be sought.

While the grand jury was investigating his predecessor's conduct in office, Frederick R. Sullivan, the new sheriff, waited only the posting of a $60,000 bond to assume his formal duties. He indicated several appointments may be announced today.

"I am going to study the whole county setup," he said. "I shall make all the changes necessary to restore the confidence of the public in this office."

End of Vermont Truck Strike Seen

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 16—Likelihood of a settlement of the state-wide truck strike loomed today as 500 striking truck drivers met to vote on acceptance of employer's offers.

Only the question of a closed shop separates the negotiators, as employers have already acceded to the other union demands of a 60-hour week with 60 cents an hour for drivers of big trucks and 40 cents for platform help.

Ex-Matron Says Pals Tickled Dowd's Toes

and women's quarters should be kept locked, but after Dowd became sheriff the door was left open and men and women prisoners could mingle.

"Always it had been a rule, also, that male guards must not enter the women's quarters, but some of the men Dowd appointed at the jail ignored that rule, or else it was scrapped, and they wandered through the women's section whenever they wished.

"I can honestly say that I never witnessed any actual wrongdoing because of this door being left open, but I did discover several instances where women prisoners had been drinking.

"There was a maid named Annie in the sheriff's house and she had been there for years.

"She told me that since Dowd had been sheriff conditions were disgusting and that nearly every morning a lot of his friends would troop in yelling, 'Where's Johnny? We want to tickle his toes and yet him out of bed.'

"They would swarm into her kitchen n raids and eat everything in sight or in the refrigerator.

"One she had baked a large cake and it was on the table when the friends came in. They yelled and sliced the cake all to pieces, eating every bit of it.

"Finally Annie quit the job. She said she couldn't stand the actions of those people any longer.

"Dowd had a beautiful bar installed in the basement of his house. You could look through the windows and see the men putting it in—all shiny and so highly-polished that I imagine you could see your face in it.

"Also while I was there as matron, after Dowd came, it was money, money, money all the time.

"There was always something they wanted you to contribute to—dinners, pools, something else like a Dowd basket fund, anything.

"I had to buy five tickets for the banquet they gave Dowd, at $5 each.

DEMANDED MORE CASH

"The last straw was just before I was let out and when one of the men who has been named in the investigation came to me and said:

"'You'll have to kick into the pool for Johnny.'

"I refused to do it and I guess I was so angry that I yelled it so loud that it got to the office."

Mrs. Wilson said she had told her story to Atty. Ruben Lurie, one of the investigators for the Boston Bar Assn.

"Boston After Dark," by George Holland, appears every day in the Boston American.

Dowd House Cost $10,500

City Auditor Charles J. Fox announced today that his completed survey of ex-Sheriff Dowd's house showed that renovations and furniture had cost the county $10,500.

A rug and two armchairs, missing on a checkup of the furnishings, were found to have been returned to the firms from which they had been purchased and the money credited to the city.

The cost was divided into $6000 for renovation and $4500 for furnishings.

KUHNBUND THEFT CUT TO $674

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (INS)—The State's charges of larceny against Bund Leader Fritz Kuhn were reduced to peanut classification today when the accountant on whose figures the case was largely built, reviewed his records from a new angle.

The total of the indictments against Kuhn exceeded $5000. Two of the counts totaled $4424.22 and it was these two on which the accountant changed his reasoning and testimony today, reducing them to $674.73.

The accountant, Benjamin Blattner, who is on Dist. Atty. Thomas E. Dewey's staff, had completed his testimony for the State on Tuesday and was to be cross-examined.

As Blattner took the stand today Judge James G. Wallace reported that in checking over the transcript, he had been unable to reconcile the various figures, balances and totals given by the accountant.

With the court asking the questions, Blattner retraced his steps through the German-American bund check book, bank statements and legal defense fund record with the final result that the $4424.22 shortage, alleged on two counts, came out as $674.23.

He explained the discrepancy by testifying that his first conclusion was based on subscriptions to and withdrawals from the defense fund.

The $674.73 figure he reached by subtracting from the amount "available for deposit" the amounts actually deposited.

Youth Is Held In Bride Killing

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 16 (AP)—Waiving a district court examination, Walter R. Hibberd, 20, was ordered held without bail today for the December session of the grand jury on a murder charge in the decapitation slaying of his bride of a week.

The mutilated body of pretty 18-year-old Mrs. Hibberd was found in the bathtub of their cozy apartment after her husband walked into Brattleboro, Vt., police station, more than 60 miles from here, on Nov. 4, and told officers he had killed his wife.

Subsequently, officers quoted Hibberd as saying his act was inspired by a two-year-long "urge to kill."

2 Boys Held; Police Comb Dedham Bog

Police of three towns today threw a dragnet about the great Sandy Valley swamp on the Dedham-Westwood line in an effort to capture two youths who had fled into the big marsh.

A short time later Patrolman William Scott was beaten with a club as he caught up with one of the boys running across a plowed field at Gay and Thatcher sts., Westwood, and engaged him in a bitter fist fight on the muddy earth.

A farmhand, Charles Benson, went to the officer's aid and the two took the lad, dirty and bleeding, to the police station.

The youth was one of three auto thieves from Fall River, Boston and Methuen who escaped from the Lyman school Tuesday.

Another was captured earlier today in Bridge st., Dedham, by Officer Nelson LaFreniere.

A short while later, Officers William Cummings and Walter Carroll, patrolling Route 1, Dedham, in a cruiser car, saw two lads walking along the road rush into the swamp as the police car approached.

Three sheep-lined coats were found abandoned beside the road where the boys fled, and Norwood, Dedham and Westwood police immediately sent men and cars to patrol the boundary of the marsh.

Then Scott saw the second youth making a run for it, carrying a club. The third is still free.

Industrial Boom Cuts Recruiting

Improved industrial conditions in New England was given today as the reason for a lag in army recruiting in this section of the nation.

It was reported that a goal of 1500 recruits before Nov. 30 had fallen short approximately 30 per cent.

HUNT 2 BANDITS WHO ROBBED SELECTMAN'S SISTER

FRAMINGHAM, Nov. 16—Search was under way today for two bandits who fled after robbing Miss Catherine O'Connor, 59, sister of Selectman Patrick E. O'Connor, while she was alone in her brother's store.

One hold up man levelled a gun at her, but she pushed him aside and ran to the door to shout for help. He followed her and she slammed the door on his hand which still clenched the gun.

"Don't you point that gun at me," she warned him sharply.

An accomplice took $75 from the cash register but overlooked $20 more as he fled in haste.

A motorist who heard Miss O'Connor's cries chased the hold-up car at a wild speed as far as Wellesley College and noted the registration numbers.

British Navy Bigger In All Except Subs

LONDON, Nov. 16 (AP)—Figures showing Great Britain's overwhelming superiority in numbers over the German navy were published today in the latest issue of Jane's Fighting Ships, authoritative British naval annual.

Only in torpedo bats and submarines did Germany lead.

Capital ships, Britain 15 including two under reconstruction; Germany five.

Aircraft carriers, Britain six; Germany none.

Heavy cruisers, Britain 15; Germany two.

Other cruisers, Britain 43, including two under reconstruction; Germany six.

Anti-aircraft ships, Britain six, including two under reconstruction; Germany none.

Destroyers, Britain 179; Germany 22.

Submarines, Britain 57; Germany 65.

Torpedo boats, Britain none; Germany 12.

Motor torpedo boats, Britain 26; Germany 30.

(Since the beginning of the war Great Britain officially has acknowledged the loss of the aircraft carrier Courageous, the battleship Royal Oak, the submarine Oxley and an unidentified destroyer. Germany has acknowledged the loss of only three submarines.)

Italy Warns Russia: Keep Out of Balkans

By PERCY WINNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ROME, Nov. 16 —Italy, in her role as protector of the Balkans, today voiced her strongest warning since Soviet political expansion began in the north, that no Russian drive toward the southwest would be tolerated.

The admonition, with obvious government approval, came from Francesco Coppola, editor of the Gazetta Del Popolo and authoritative member of the oyal Academy of Italy.

Italy, he wrote in his paper, "will never permit any further advance of Bolshevik Russia beyond the Carpathians, into the Danubian valley, through the Balkans, or toward the Mediterranean."

SEEK BALKAN PEACE

This declaration ruled out at the outset, so far as Italy is concerned, any Russian ambitions for recovery of Rumania's eastern province of Bessarabia.

In recent weeks Italy, with the collaboration of Great Britain, has been fostering a Balkan "peace bloc" aimed to prevent any German or Russian expansion on the Balkan peninsula.

Coppola's statement gave support to an important declaration by Virginio Gayda, editor of the Giornale D'Italia and press spokesman for Premier Mussolini.

Control of the Mediterranean, said Gayda, belongs to Italy, which desires a "more lasting and better peace based on justice."

SAYS ITALY BETRAYED

In a radio address broadcast to the United States, Gayda attacked the Versailles treaty. He charged Italy was "betrayed" by the allies. He said:

"Italy wants an open door to the Aegean sea, so that she can reach every port in the world and peacefully expand her trade and culture without being subjected to permanent foreign watchmen, as seems to be the case in the Mediterranean.

Nazis in Fight To Crush Britain

Referring to a recurrence of rumors concerning Germany's "aggressive intentions in The Netherlands and Belgium," Sir John said:

"Large concentrations of German troops on the Dutch and Belgian frontiers and the threatening campaign in the German press present a pattern all too familiar to a world grown accustomed to seeing such signs as an immediate forerunner of a German invasion."

The Belgo-Dutch offer, Sir John said, was a "bold intervention in the cause of peace."

"But past experience,' he said, does not enable us to be very hopeful of a satisfactory response from Hitler.

"Recent utterances by Hitler do not indicate the German reply is likely to open the door to a peaceful and satisfactory settlement."

Nazi Battleship Sunk, Is Report

LONDON, Nov. 16 (INS)—An unconfirmed report circulated in Plymouth today that a British battle cruiser had sunk the German pocket battleship Deutschland.

Naval circles in London refused to comment.

THE GIRL WHO KEEPS HER JOB

is the girl who commutes by train

(P. S. SHE SAVES MONEY, TOO)

SHE is always at the office at the same time every morning (some of the girls even say they can safely set their watches by her arrival).

Her nerves are never upset by traffic snarls or the pressure of trying to "beat the clock." She rides on the train—relaxed and rested. She does better work and more of it. What's more, she knows it's cheaper in the end to commute by train.

If you are one of the girls who have been depending on hit and miss transportation that has you "on the carpet" for being late only too often, why don't you acquire this sensible girl's habit of commuting by train? Do it now, with Winter approaching, for the sake of yourself, your boss, and your family.

Call the North Station (Capitol 5070) or see your local ticket agent today. Let us tell you the important savings you can make by using B and M commuter's tickets —let us give you a local time table listing the many convenient trains to Boston.

Soviet Press Hits Finn 'Hate' Campaign

MOSCOW, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Soviet press, intensifying attacks on Finnish foreign policy, today quoted an Estonian newspaper as saying that Finland's relations with the U. S. S. R. "obduracy" was impairing her

In a dispatch from Tallinn, Tass, official Russian news agency, said the Estonian newspaper Uus Eesti had criticized Finland's military preparations and urged that she regulate relations with her great eastern neighbor as soon as possible.

"Finland is hurting herself—no one can deny that," the dispatch quoted the paper as saying.

In another dispatch from Helsinki, capital of Finland, Tass charged that Finns were being taught to "hate Russians" with the encouragement of "the English bourgoisie."

BRITISH ASSAILED

These attacks, reminiscent of Soviet newspaper comment preceding the Russian march into Poland two months ago, were interpreted by foreign observers as part of a campaign to induce Finland to grant Russia's demands for territorial concessions.

At the same time Great Britain was the object of sharp criticism in Pravda, Communist party newspaper, which commented on "deplorable conditions" in India under British rule.

Pravda said that India had the "largest army of unemployed in the world" and that 92 per cent of the population was illiterate.

In the Helsinki dispatch, Tass declared that Finnish "reactionary elements" were fostering an "anti-Soviet policy" and preaching a doctrien of "hate" in the army and in the schools.

BACKS "RED" DEMANDS

"The leaders of the anti-Soviet campaign of lies are the most reactionary elements, who are dreaming of spreading the boundaries of Finland all the way to the Urals (in Russia)," the dispatch declared, adding that "the English bourgeoisie has supported this anti-Soviet attitude."

Tass denied that Russia had made any "impossible demands" during recent negotiations with Finland, which were suspended last Monday by recall of a Finnish mission from Moscow.

In Helsinki it was indicated that the talks would not be resumed unless the Russians provided a new basis for negotiations—presumably modification of their demands for readjustment of frontiers near Leningrad and naval bases in northern Finland and at the mouth of the Gulf of Finland.

Big British Ship Escapes U-Boat In Panama Race

LONDON, Nov. 16 (INS)—The British passenger liner Mataroa, 12,390 tons, escaped from a submarine while en route to Panama from New Zealand, a Reuters dispatch from Panama City said today.

The report said the liner sighted the submarine on the surface two and a half miles away. Captain W. H. P. Jackson swung the ship around until the submarine was astern and ordered full steam ahead. The chase, said Reuters, lasted 50 minutes, and the submarine gave up when it was left seven miles behind.

Reuters said the liner was armed but that the captain gave orders not to fire unless his ship were attacked.

Thyssen, Nazi Backer, In Switzerland

LUCERNE, Switzerland, Nov. 16 (AP)—Fritz Thyssen, German steel magnate and an early supporter of Adolf Hitler, was in Switzerland today for an "indefinite stay" with his wife and one child.

NAZI GOODS SEIZED BY FRENCH

PARIS, Nov. 16 (AP)—A minimum of war activity on the western front was reported today by the French general staff, which announced in a communique that there was "no notable news during the night."

News of war on the sea was confined to a statement by Blockade Minister Georges Pernot that 223,297 tons of merchandise consigned to Germany had been seized by the French navy up to Nov. 10.

Pernot, reporting to the Chamber of Deputies Foreign Affairs Committee, said the seizures included 100,000 tons of raw materials and 35,000 tons of petroleum.

4 Words Tell German War 'News' for a Day

BERLIN, Nov. 16 (AP)—The German high command took note today of lagging activity on the war front in a four-word communique:

2 Paris Officials Seized in Red Raid

PARIS, Nov. 16 (AP)—Nine persons, including two Communist members of the Paris municipal council, were arrested today in a series of raids made to break up clandestine activities of the outlawed Communist party.

The two council members were Rene Le Gall and Eugene Frot, former minister of labor.

Vast Pension Plan Goes to FDR Today

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (INS)—Complete plans for inaugurating the government's old age pension program Jan. 1, with initial old age benefit payments to nearly 1,000,000 persons, will be placed before President Roosevelt today by Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt.

McNutt revealed today an estimated $111,000,000 will be distributed in 1940 to the aged on a family-unit basis, as provided by Congress last spring in revising the Social Security Act. Payments will range from a minimum of $10 to a maximum of $85 a month.

With 46,000,000 wage-earners building up old-age annuities through payroll taxes, McNutt estimated that benefit payments for some 11,000,000 persons would reach $1,930,000,000 annually by 1955.

The conference between the President and McNutt is slated to be the most important held by the two since the former Indiana governor became security administrator last June.

Future policy of the six major agencies consolidated in the security administration under the government reorganization act are to be discussed. McNutt has held a series of conferences with the heads of the agencies, which he calls his "board of directors," and has formulated a list of recommendations to submit to Mr. Roosevelt.

"Some changes should be made in the Social Security Act," McNutt said in an exclusive interview with International News Service.

"The President also has been studying the question. We realize the Social Security Act is not perfect, probably not broad enough, but we will have to work out a system that is adapted to American needs,—economic and otherwise.

"We have, however, made a great start. Any recommendations that are made, and I have some ideas, will be made to improve the system.

"The 46 million workers who have federal insurance accounts need feel no fears that their Social Security cards will become valueless scraps of paper. They are acquiring a financial interest in the successful outcome of democratic institutions and increased security.

"Business also benefits by the act. No longer is private business compelled to face, unaided, the conditions which arise when failing markets compel the curtailing of personnel and consequent loss of purchasing power."

100 MORE MOTHERS JOIN IN ANTI-WAR DRIVE

Convinced that the mothers of America can do more than any other agency to keep us out of war, a group of 100 Framingham women are working today to enroll the mothers of that community 100 per cent in the National Legion of Mothers of America.

The Framingham organization was formed at a meeting last night at St. Bridget's church in Framingham Center at the instigation of Rev. Michael J. O'Connor, better known as "Father Mike" famed Brigadier-General of the 26th Division.

Addressing the gathering of women at the meeting Fr. O'Connor urged them to form an organization immediately and solicit the support of their neighbors.

"Many of us laught at the thought of war now," the doughboy priest declared, "but we did exactly the same thing in 1916. The President is asking for millions of dollars for 'national defense.'

"We have no need for national defense at this time. The countries of Europe are now so embroiled amongst themselves that there isn't the slightest danger of United States invasion. Every European country will be so weak physically at the close of this war that they will not be able to recuperate for the next seven years.

"The money being solicited is to form an army of your sons to be sent overseas and it is only through organizing that you mothers can prevent it."

SEES THIRD TERM TRY

Fr. O'Connor said he had friends in official circles in Washington who believe as he does that the United States faces the definite possibility of war.

"President Roosevelt will run for a third term on pretty near the same slogan of 'keeping us out of war' as President Wilson did," Rev. O'Connor declared, "and he will not be able to do it more than Wilson did.

"It is you mothers who can keep us out of war and I urge as the best method the joining now of the Legion of Mothers."

The priest's suggestion was placed in the form of a motion and unanimously carried. Mrs. Ralph Sullivan was elected president of the newly formed chapter, Mrs. Joseph Ryan, vice-president, and Mrs. Amedee Richards, secretary.

The newly-elected president, Mrs. Sullivan, has a son who is currently drilling at a National Guard camp.

"I believe it is all right for every boy to join the National Guard," she declared, "because it is preparing him for home defense. I would not, however, countenance his joining any organization which would result in his serving overseas."

Mrs. Hannah Connors, patrol mother, of Milton, addressed the group, and expressed pleasure at the rapid strides the Legion of Mothers is making.

Two Dorchester members of the Legion of Mothers accompanied Mrs. Connors to the meeting and addressed the gathering. They were Mrs. Mary Kennedy and Mrs. Josephine McNeil. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Romeo Polandari.

Following the organization of the Framingham unit each new member was given seven pledge cards supplied by the Boston Evening American and urged to enroll their friends.

The slogans of the organization are:

1—To oppose the sending of American soldiers to fight on foreign soil.

2—To support a program of adequate national defense.

3—To combat all isms whose object is the destruction of the American form of government.

All women, married or unmarried are eligible without dues. Just sign pledge card and mail without delay to Box 2228, Boston, Mass.

COP HELD AS KILLER OF MAYOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (INS)—First Degree murder charges were prepared today against Patrolman Alvin Dooley, who shot and killed Mayor Louis F. Edwards of Long Beach and seriously wounded the mayor's bodyguard, Patrolman James Walsh.

Authorities released a confession which they stated Dooley had signed and in which he was quoted as expressing anger at the mayor for supporting Walsh for the presidency of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association of Long Beach, a post Dooley sought.

"I am not sorry I killed the mayor but I am sorry I shot Walsh," the statement declared.

Dooley poured a stream of flat slugs resembling dum-dum bullets from a special .38 revolver into the mayor and Walsh as they emerged from the Edwards home yesterday morning. The mayor died on the sidewalk but Walsh was given an even chance for life.

Coffey Winner In Vote Recount

Election recounts today resulted in defeat instead of victory for Mrs. Susan K. Donoven of East Boston, who was declared elected city councilor on the basis of first returns.

Mrs. Donovan, a state Representative, originally announced as winner by three votes over James S. Coffey in the first counting of Ward 1 votes, lost to Coffey today by 13 votes.

She immediately petitioned for another recount in precinct 10 where the greatest change in votes was found.

In that precinct Coffey picked up 26 votes and Mrs. Donovan lost 7 ballots.

In Ward 3 Joseph Russo held his lead over Rep. George Leary and Councilman John I. Fitzgerald. Defeated candidates also failed to alter results in Wards 9, 14 and 18.

Cambridge war council contests remained unchanged in favor of Councillors Joseph M. Banks and Edward H. Donovan, the election commission announced.

Gruelling Hub Test For Byrd's Flagship

Preliminary trials were made today on the new Diesel engine which will speed the barkentine Bear of Oakland, Admiral Richard E. Byrd's flagship, to the Antarctic.

Also scheduled for today or tomorrow is an all-day harbor cruise, to test the general fitness of the tight little ship, already heavily laden with equipment for the government's 13-month expedition to South Polar regions.

At the Atlantic yards in East Boston, the Bear was tied fast to her pier for her first engine trial. The vessel is dwarfed by the size of the Eastern steamship liner Acadia, at one side, but looms large in contrast to three fishing trawlers, the Coot, Brant and Plover.

Workmen disconnected the reduction gears to the propeller, then put the new, 600-horsepower diesel engine through a series of tests equal in severity to the strain which would be experienced during hard weather.

LEAVES NEXT WEEK

Two auxiliary, 50-horsepower Diesel motors, used for generating electricity, were also given dock trials. A third auxiliary engine, for emergency uses, was being connected today.

Meanwhile, members of the Bear's crew continued preparations for the ship's departure next week.

Quantities of canned foodstuffs, mechanical gear and clothing for which the cutter North Star had no space were being transferred from the Army Base to the navy yard and will be loaded aboard the Bear.

Beware Sunburn at South Pole

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—Ever hear of getting sunburned at the South Pole? Well, the Red Cross did.

"Strangely," says a Red Cross announcement, "sunburn under the Antarctic sun can sometimes be more serious than that found on Florida's sunniest beaches."

Accordingly, Red Cross instructors who will go to the pole with the government's Antarctic expedition will conduct sunburn experiments.

At East Boston airport, a light monoplane is being equipped with skis and will be stored on the Bear.

Today, a new member was added to the Bear of Oakland's crew, a 2½ month-old huskie pup, named Blizzard II, stolen Tuesday from the pier of the North Star at the Army Base.

An unidentified man ran up to a Navy Yard sentry, handed him the fuzzy, 15-pound pup, then rushed off, shouting:

"I found him in a saloon!"

The dog, renamed "Little Bear", was made mascot of the ship.

NEW HOPE FOR FOLKS OVER 40

Who Feel Old From Need of Iron & Vitamin B

Perhaps you have read about Vitamin B and its thrilling effect upon many organs of the body

If You Suffer From Low vitality
Frequent periods of ill health
Heartburn, gas
Acid indigestion
Palpitation
Run-down
Pale cheeks
Restless sleep
Certain nerve disorders, neuritis
Lack of vigor
Short breath
Loss of appetite
Iron poor blood
You May Need ENRICH for Iron and Vitamin B1

A Tremendous number of people past 40 fail to get enough of this vitamin often because the digestive processes slow up. As a result, these folks are in poor health.

They have very little energy or appetite. They develop types of nervousness and neuritis, they sleep restlessly and their glands are affected, as well as the stomach and intestines. Many folks over 40 also have a crying need for iron to make rich red blood, because the body's iron reserve has become run down.

A remarkable new combination of iron and Vitamin B—ENRICH, now supplies more iron each day than bushels of spinach or boxes of raisins. It supplies more Vitamin B1 daily than the finest of yeast cakes. ENRICH tastes good, and often produces an amazing improvement in a short time.

Thousands over 40, who formerly felt played out, weak and grouchy from lack of Vitamin B and iron, now are full of pep and sunshine since taking ENRICH. Costs but a few cents a day and can be taken with confidence by men, women or children—contains no alcohol, no arsenic or other stimulant drugs. Does not blacken teeth.

Money back unless you feel better, look better, sleep better, and eat better after taking ENRICH for only one week.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. Then poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Actor Ferrer's Beard Is Boon to Tailors

By PEGGY DOYLE

Living up to his new beard is proving a shot in the arm to the custom tailoring business in Boston, according to Jose Ferrer. He is the likable young husband of Actress Uta Hagen, and Loyalist soldier of Maxwell Anderson's poetic melodrama, "Key Largo," at the Colonial.

"My role requires the beard. Both Mr. Anderson and I agree that as the young soldier who chose to die with his ideals, right or wrong, it individualizes me, sets me apart from my Loyalist comrades.

"But it's a bit too individualistic for my private life, especially in the Statler lobby. There has been a 'where's the soapbox, brother?' look directed too often in my direction.

"To counteract that Leftist leer, I've been spending my all on the most meticulously tailored suits and overcoat I can find. On the theory that clothes make the man, I'm hoping I look like a distinguished scientist, or, at least, a prosperous, if arty, broker."

Mrs. Ferrer, nee Hagen, confided that the metamorphosis is a trifle disconcerting. She said:

"Until this week, I've never seen him in anything but tattered sweaters, old hats and suits so aged in the seams and conditioned to his mode of living they could go off to rehearsal without him."

Both these youngsters have had brief but spectacular careers on the stage. Miss Hagen's first role was that of Ophelia to Eva La Gallienne's "Hamlet" two years ago at Dennis and on the road.

Six months later, Miss Hagen made her Broadway debut with the Lunts in "The Sea Gull." Her Nina harvested unanimous critical approval.

Today, just turned 20, she is Paul Muni's leading lady.

Jose Ferrer has been quartered in theatrical dressing-rooms a little longer than his wife, but he, too, has come to the fore like an ascendant star. But it was in the cards—the first stage dressing-room he ever tenanted in Lucrezia Bori's at Manhattan's Metropolitan Opera House.

He was then a Princeton senior on annual tour with a Triangle Club musical.

Dewey to Air His Position on Dec. 6

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—Thomas A. Dewey, New York district attorney, will make the first in a series of addresses outlining his position on national issues in Minneapolis, probably on Dec. 6.

The announcement, made by Dewey's office, said he had promised to speak in several other cities, including St. Louis, but had not set definite dates. His Minneapolis topic was not made public.

JUSTICE BUTLER DEAD

1938 Agriculutral Adjustment Act, holding that a group of private power companies could not attack the constitutionality of the Tennessee Valley Authority power program, and that a state may impose an income tax on salary received by federal employes.

Butler was the only Catholic on the court.

Born in a Minnesota log cabin, Butler practiced law at St. Paul until appointed to the court in 1922 by President Harding, a Republican.

Because he had been attorney for several railroads and many corporations, several midwestern Progressives fought his confirmation by the Senate. They contended he would be a reactionary.

GOLF HIS HOBBY

Away from his judicial duties, he was a genial story teller and loved to play golf—though not expertly.

Genealogically he was thoroughly Irish. He and his father, whose name was Patrick, both were born on St. Patrick's Day.

Butler wrote the 1936 opinion holding unconstitutional a New York law fixing minimum wages for women. It was reversed a few months later by a decision sustaining a similar statute enacted by Washington State.

As the Supreme Court assembled at noon, Chief Justice Hughes, his voice trembling with emotion, announced Butler's death.

"It is my sad duty," he said, "to announce the passing, early this morning, of our brother, Mr. Justice Pierce Butler.

"After a long and distinguished career at the Minnesota bar, he was appointed associate justice of this court and took his seat in January, 1923. Trained in the exacting school of a most active professional practice, Pierce Butler brought to this court not only his learning in the law but a rich store of practical experience.

"His fidelity, his courage and forthrightness, which were his outstanding characteristics, made him a doughty warrior for his convictions, and he served the court with great ability and indefatigable industry, and an unwavering loyalty to its traditions and to his lofty conception of its function in preserving our constitutional heritage.

RITES TOMORROW

"The funeral services in Washington will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at St. Matthews' Cathedral and the court will attend. A committee of the court composed of Mr. Justice McReynolds, Mr. Justice Stone and Mr. Justice Roberts will attend the services to be held in St. Paul.

"As a further token of our respect for the memory of our brother, the court, immediately upon the conclusion of the hearing in the case now on argument, in which counsel from the Pacific Coast are engaged, will adjourn until Wednesday, Nov. 22, at noon."

Murphy or Jackson May Get Seat

WASHINGTON Nov 16 (INS)—Atty Gen. Frank Murphy and U. S. Solicitor Gen. Robert H. Jackson were prominently mentioned in New Deal circles today as possible appointees to the Supreme Court vacancy caused by the death of Justice Pierce Butler.

The appointment, which will be Mr. Roosevelt's fifth to the nine-justice tribunal

FIRING SQUAD AT DAWN

by PAUL WHELTON

IT WAS very puzzling to the agents of British Special Intelligence. Periodically they had noted English newspapers, each newspaper showing at least one tobacco advertisement marked with pencil, being sent to an address in Holland.

Now on the face of it there certainly was nothing wrong in sending an English tobacco ad to Dierks & Co. of Rotterdam, because this was a concern dealing in tobacco, even though the company occupied only a shabby little shop.

Special Intelligence had marked this address, however, as one suspected to be a cail office for letters to the German Secret Service operating in Holland.

Therefore, as each newspaper came through British post, the wrapper was painstakingly removed and the marked advertisement treated chemically to see if anything of a subversive nature could be brought out.

Nothing had been revealed by these chemical tests, so the ads were photographed in enlargement and the prints conveyed to the Special Intelligence decoding staff.

The first thing the decoding staff observed was that the advertisements offered none too remarkable bargains in tobacco — nothing startling enough, certainly, to interest the Rotterdam tobacconist.

The German Secret Service experts are no novices at designing secret communication systems perplexing even to expeits not equipped with the key.

There is an infinite variety of ciphers and codes, and discovering the key is practically always a headache task if the system has been plotted by an expert.

Now the British decoders had a whole series of tobacco advertisement photographs and they began to look in these advertisements for repetitious words and words that might be significant.

Slowly the light began to come through and for the word "tobacco" in the advertisements they began to read the cipher word "ammunition." In like fashion they established that the word "wrapper" in connection with the tobacco meant "shells," that the advertisement word "boxes" meant "shipments."

This new German method of communication was revealed, and using now the known key, the decoders translated a bargain in Honduras tobacco as really reading:

"Have first-class information for 120 reference to shipment ammunition to Italy."

BUT there was nothing British intelligence could do about the advertisements except to file them and wait for developments. Sooner or later, they felt, the German spy in England would show his hand.

Then, early in February, 1915, the Intelligence agents detailed to the postal department picked out a letter addressed to Dierks & Co. Elatedly they checked the handwriting, and found it was identical with the writing on the address wrappers of the newspapers.

The letter inside appeared harmless enough. It was but a brief note, appearing on the face to be a hurried duty missive sent to the tobacconist by an "L. Cohen" of "High st., Deptford," in the east section of London.

"Love and kisses to the family," the letter ended cosly.

"And love and kisses to you, too," the British agent might presumably have remarked as he set to work in an attempt to discover if anything was hidden here.

He did not have to exert himself much. The simple hot iron test—which brings out secret writings in lemon juice, orange juice, lime juice, ammonia and similar substances—revealed that "Mr. L. Cohen," whoever he might be under his right name, was a bit impatient with the Holland office.

As the hidden writing came up under the heat, it read:

"How do you expect me to get you valuable information if you do not send me money? I am sending you news which is of enormous value, and am daily in peril of my life."

The address at 22 High st. was checked, with the results the agents knew it would bring. There was no "L. Cohen" known there, or anywhere else in the district.

The newspapers continued, and so did letters from "L. Cohen," letters which contained valuable military information, details of air-raid defenses in London, troop movements at railroad stations and the like.

By handwriting experts these letters were carefully altered and the real information replaced by news which must have startled the German High Command. Then the letters went along to Dierks & Co.

The complaint about the money had apparently had effect, however, for there was not another letter in this material tenor.

The more the letters and newspapers flowed, the more Special Intelligence became unhappy. They knew that if there was no complaint, money must be flowing in to the spy, and this money would not be forthcoming if the German Secret Service did not believe it was getting its money's worth.

HENCE there was elation in British Special Intelligence when another apparently innocent letter to Dierk & Co., was intercepted and treatment brought out invisible writing which said, cryptically.

"C to Newcastle. This from 201."

Well, considered the special agents, that certainly could not mean "Coals to Newcastle." And who or what was "201."

The postmark on the letter was Deptford. Could that be the number of a German agent or was it the number of a street in Deptford or in Newcastle? They knew few streets in Deptford probably would carry numbers so high, but secretly they checked through police.

Back came the reply. The only street in Deptford with a No. 201 was High st., and at this address was a bakery run by a naturalized German, Peter Hahn.

The agents lost no time in interviewing Peter Hahn, at whose name they had thrilled. But Peter Hahn was sorry. He could not help them. Who was "C"? Sorry, but he did not know.

They searched his premises and experienced another thrill when they discovered equipment for writing with invisible ink. At the same time other agents were inquiring through the neighborhood—not for a man who might be known as "C" but for anyone who might recently have gone to Newcastle.

From the neighbors they did learn that Hahn had done so poorly in business that he had gone into bankruptcy in 1913, but now he appeared to be in affluent circumstances.

Also they learned that his father was back in Germany. For safety's sake they placed Hahn under arrest, locked the bakery and took him to Scotland Yard, together with the blank pieces of writing paper, the ball-pointed pen, the ammonia, bits of wool and the small bottle of colorless, odorless liquid they had found in his "invisible writing" kit.

That night one of the Scotland Yard detectives aiding Special Intelligence in checking "C" came across a woman in Deptford who recalled that sometimes Hahn had a visitor whose name she believed to be Muller.

Ah another German name, thought the detective. Did madam know where this Muller had his lodgings? The madam did not, but she had a feeling that it might be somewhere in the Bloomsbury district.

Post-haste the detective hurried to Bloomsbury and there continued his check. Finally he came to an obscure lodging house in Torrington sq., and was assured that a Karl Friedrich Muller, a tall man but a Russian, not a German, lived there.

"He sells foreign stocks and bonds," said the landady, "but just now he's in Newcastle for a few days. Has he done anything?"

"Oh, he just hasn't registered properly," she was told.

After a little searching she came up with the address in Newcastle and at that address a tall, gaunt, worried-looking individual with an apparently perpetual frown was arrested.

WHEN arrested he, too, was told it was a matter connected with his registration as a foreigner.

But when, back at Scotland Yard, he was informed he actually was under arrest as a German spy he turned white.

"You are making a bad mistake, my good gentlemen," he protested. "I am a Russian subject and I hate all Germans."

Then Muller explained that he was born in Libau, Russia, in 1857. He demonstrated that he spoke Russian, Flemish, Dutch, French, German and English fluently, but he asserted that he had never been in Germany.

He said that he had held many positions, [illegible] some of them very [illegible] was a foreman, [illegible] Egypt. [illegible] Later for a travelling salesman, a stock salesman, check-weigher of cargoes, and automobile salesman and had been in many other employments.

"Well, that sounds all right," said the Scotland Yard man who was questioning him, "but we had better get the facts down in black and white. Perhaps you will write out your account of yourself and swear to it as correct."

"With pleasure."

And he did write out, at considerable length, a long statement of affiliations, activities and travels—but there was nothing in the statement about spying.

Then he was locked up while the long fingers of Scotland Yard, coupled with the resources of Special Intelligence, searched back into his real past. The search disclosed many interesting facts, and at the same time the statement he had written out was being compared for handwriting with the newspaper address wrappers and with the letters to the tobacconist in Rotterdam.

The investigators discovered that the 37-year-old accused had gone through one usual routine of spies—love-making with impressionable women, young and old, including landladies who might have information or gossip; fulsome promises of wealth to come and talk of many friends in high places.

What he had not mentioned in these affairs de amour was that all the highly-placed friends were in Germany, not in Russia or England.

He had been in England since before the start of the war in August, 1914, but evidently was of too great importance to be included among the spies who received their instructions from Karl Gustav Ernst, all of whom, including Ernst, were rounded up in the big British spy drive of August 4.

ERNST, a German born in Britain, married to a German woman who was proprietor of a hair-dressing establishment in the Caledonian rd., North London, was the pivot on which the German spy system in the British Isles to a great extent turned.

On Nov. 13, 1914, he was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude on a charge of espionage, as his spy work, for the most part, had been done in peacetime.

In addition to Ernst, 21 known German spies were rounded up in the drive of Aug. 4, but Muller, although then operating, was not even known about, let alone suspected.

Muller, in his character as a Russian, had escaped internment at the start of the war, and but for the interception of the letter to Rotterdam with the complaint about money, and the later letter by the stupid Hahn, he might have continued indefinitely to send damaging information to Germany.

Meanwhile, in line with the policy of Special Intelligence, the arrest of Hahn and Muller had been kept as quiet as possible, and letters from England continued to go forward to the tobacco dealer in Holland.

They were letters in Muller's style, and apparently his handwriting, on the paper found in Hahn's bakery and discovered to be identical with that of the intercepted letters and with the ammonia found in the bakery as invisible ink.

It was startling information, some of it, and must have seemed of great value to the German High Command, for the replies were frequent, friendly and generous—to the extent of about $2000 in remittances.

However, there came a day when Special Intelligence, acting quietly for "C," received a rather brusque reply from Rotterdam. This note said:

"Owing to a sequence of wrong information coming from you, which has misled us, we are herewith dispensing with your services."

Thus ruthlessly cast aside, Special Intelligence and Scotland Yard, it is recorded, consoled themselves by buying an automobile with the money from Rotterdam. With a certain irony, the car was named "Muller" and after a number of years of faithful purring, it wore itself out in the service of the Yard.

The investigation of the agents and Scotland Yard detectives meanwhile had brought them to the conclusion that Hahn was merely the tool of the older Muller in the espionage.

It also brought the investigators to wonder why such an apparently astute and keen-minded spy should have picked for an accomplice such a dull-witted personage as the stout, young baker.

Although Muller's motives in turning spy for Germany were seemingly patriotic, those of Hahn were purely mercenary, in the opinion of the detectives.

AS had been their arrest, the trial of the two men was conducted with a minimum of publicity. In his capacity as a naturalised British subject, Hahn had the right to be tried by a

National Guard Trucks Lined Up in War Games for Intensive Training

Guard Set In Event Of War

The 101st Quartermaster Regiment of the 26th Division, Massachusetts National Guard, is today finishing its extra seven days of "war conditions" field training in the Blue Hills.

Under army orders, an extra week of training was ordained for national guard outfits this year.

While a real and bitter war is being fought in Europe, in America, make-believe conditions are being set up—but "make-believe" conditions with a definite purpose.

Major L. B. Savage, Capt. Geo ge L. Gleason, Lieut. Paul Jones, Major Frank J. Kelley plan the days activities with other officers.

Father James E. Dunford of St. Bridges' parish, Framingham, attache chaplain, visits the men daily.

Trucks rumble through gas and smoke screens, exactly as they might one day, under grimmer conditions, be forced to do.

So here, as throughout the country, the national guard prepares for the day they hope will not come. But, should it, they will be ready.

March of Events -:- By BENJAMIN DeCASSERES

WISELY, City Marshal Winfred J. Ellis of Gloucester silences reports that children accused of stealing from stores and homes are going to be compelled to parade the loot through the city's principal streets.

PIONEER JUSTICE
An Accurate Portrayal

Every town and village contained grim "stocks of pillory," about which the populace was wont to gather to ridicule, taunt and abuse thieves, drunkards, wife-beaters and sundry offenders.

The theory was that fear of finding themselves in the criminal's most embarrassing position would induce on-lookers to adhere forever to the "straight and narrow."

Little or no attention was paid to the guilty person's reformation. It was generally assumed that a criminal remained a criminal and that anything other than corporal punishment was wasted effort.

If the spectacle of a man's being horsewhipped, half-drowned or stoned frightened his fellow townsmen into good behavior the officials were satisfied.

That program has long been abandoned. Today, penalogists work towards two goals. They endeavor to prevent crime. And they also endeavor to rehabilitate those who commit crime.

It is true, their accomplishments have fallen far short of their aims. In an average year 57,417 boys and 9234 girls are before the nation's courts for such offenses as homicide, automobile stealing, possession of illegal drugs and liquors, larceny, truancy and immorality.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, recently viewed the situation and reported:

"More than 19 per cent of all persons arrested have been under voting age. These individuals constitute 12 per cent of all murderers, 29 per cent of all robbers, 46 per cent of all burglars, 33 per cent of all thieves and 54 per cent of all automobile 'bandits.'"

Nevertheless, obedience to law and respect for order will not be instilled in the minds of youth by a return to the punishments of the Dark Ages.

Juvenile delinquency can be PREVENTED and, to a great extent, CURED by attacking its CAUSES and, as the late Arthur Brisbane often said, by teaching a child to avoid his FIRST lie, his FIRST theft, his FIRST departure from the company of decent, honorable and respectable people.

Intelligence in our own heads, rather than whipping posts in museums, will save our sons and daughters.

ONE HUNDRED INDUSTRIES have moved into Massachusetts during the past year, Governor Saltonstall reports. And scores of others are expected, particularly in Lawrence and the Merrimack Valley.

The Governor is optimistic, because he believes the establishment of new enterprises on a large scale will solve the unemployment problem and provide the opportunities young people have sought in vain for the past six years.

There can be little doubt about that. Three years ago, in the midst of the depression, Massachusetts had 8316 business establishments which employed 442,649 men and women, and paid them wages totalling $445,831,000.

Had all of these been abolished and the task of paying comparable wages assumed by the Commonwealth, each of our 4,249,614 people would have had to pay a head tax of more than one hundred dollars a year IN ADDITION to the other taxes that reduced his bank account and lowered his standard of living

More factories mean MORE jobs and FEWER taxes.

THIS COLUMN chucks war and politics into the waste-basket. For instance—the triumph of a pair of eyes and a tail over a human will.

A female friend of mine, having lost a dog to which she was closely attached, suffered so much from the loss that she took a vow never to have another dog.

But Hubby was of another opinion. So one day he brought home a beautiful Spitz puppy which he named Flip. The wife would have nothing to do with Flip—would not notice his existence. On the other hand, Flip would have nothing to do with Hubby.

SO EVERY DAY, for two weeks, Flip silently planted himself before the wife and pleaded with her with his big, expressive eyes and gentle tail-wagging to be taken to her heart.

And for two weeks Wifey looked over Flip's head or gave him the stony stare. Until one day she could stand it no longer. She cracked under the beseeching eyes and the heart wig-wags from the tail as completely as a man going into his twentieth hour of the third degree.

Her eyes turned soft, then a tear trickled down her cheek, then her hands moved instinctively toward Flip. That was enough for Flip. He knew a human emotional bustification when he saw it. He made one leap into her lap, and after a great roly-poly to-do he rushed off and barked and danced all around Hubby.

You see, Flip the conqueror could now afford to be generous to a mere husband, or he may have wanted to show his gratitude to him as an ally.

ALSO—I had a clock on a bookcase in front of me for several years in my writing room. Recently I removed it to another room, so that now there is no clock in my room.

But each day that I come into my room, in the morning, I am startled at hearing (or imagining that I hear) a faint regular ticking on the exact spot where the clock stood.

Which led to a long meditation on have clocks souls? And are there clock-ghosts? Or were my habit-cells projecting the ticking?—which would be just as mysterious.

THEN, TOO—Fritz Kreisler, famous Austrian violinist now in America, has taken to bemoaning the young people of today.

"There is no romanticism for them," he says. "From the start they are face to face with stern necessities, leaving no time for the foolish little romantic things we did when I was young."

Tush and folderol, Fritz! Romanticism and libido know not any time or era. Cupid hasn't resigned because Mr. Kreisler is ageing. And as for our young people facing "stern necessities" from the start, that's what they ought to face. This tough old world creates character.

What would Mr. Kreisler have for young people? A Ham-and-Eggs pension every Thursday?

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—It is a most beautiful day and I feel so rested that even a lecture in Newark, N. J., and sitting up late to catch up on mail doesn't make the sky one bit grayer. I think it must be my two nights in the country.

I had an interesting visit with Mr. Phillip Hiss, a well-known New York architect and an old friend, who showed me a development which is the result of long time planning and research. It may mean more permanent and better housing for people of very moderate income.

Two things which appealed to me greatly were the economy of the heating and the air conditioning. The fact that the structure would be fireproof is also a great point in its favor.

In addition to that, I have wondered frequently on seeing some of the so-called low income housing, about the life of the building which must of necessity be amortized over a long period, whether it is government built or built by private enterprise. Houses are valuable to the tenants in exact proportion to the amount of repair bills over the years, and yet we give this item little thought.

AS I STEPPED out of a taxi yesterday afternoon, the taxi driver in handing me my change, to my complete surprise, said: "God bless you, ma'am." I wonder whether it was for the tip or whether he really wanted to say something nice about the Administration. In any case, it is a cheering comment.

happy salutation and I wish we used it more often to each other.

The questions in the Town Hall series last night in Newark, N. J., where I spoke, were very interesting. I understand that Mrs. Parker O. Griffith, chairman of the Town Hall, is the moving spirit. I should think that she would be very satisfied with the interest shown.

I was told that Mr. Alexander Woollcott was their first speaker and I was a little nervous at following such an expert raconteur. When I discovered that Secretary Ickes and General Hugh S. Johnson are to debate at the next meeting, I felt that the "meat" in this sandwich was not so good as it should have been to live up to the "bread" on either side! I wish I could be in the audience for the coming debate.

I see that Holland has been assured that there is no intention of invading her borders and I confess to being glad every time a small country is assured of safety. I feel quite a personal tie with Holland and Belgium because of our ancestors.

I wonder if we will ever return to the day which I can remember, when little was thought of passports. You did not need them to visit most countries. While certain difficulties existed, if you did not know the language or found the exchange of money hard to master, still travel was a very easy thing.

Now, no one can travel anywhere without a certain risk, and one can certainly not journey for pleasure in many parts of the world.

WIFE WOULD BRING NIJINSKY HERE

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—Mrs. Nijinsky, wife of the dancer, still is trying to arrange for her husband to leave Switzerland and come to America to resume treatments by Dr. Manfred Sakel, the famous psychiatrist, who is now in New York . . . Mrs. Nijinsky still preserves that contact . . . Although she can't bring her husband to him, she does the next best thing . . . Last week, for instance, came long letters, detailing the dancer's activities, together with hundreds of recent photographs, close-ups which might reveal some light as to his condition.

HERE'S HOW Edgar Bergen first came to earn big money, according to a friend's story. After his first two broadcasts had made Bergen's popularity leap, his agent promised to get him a raise of almost $1500 . . . "Okay, he won't break it," the agent told them, "but remember one thing—the contract is with Bergen, and not with Charlie McCarthy. Suppose Charlie's dropped from the script?" The sponsor agreed to the increase.

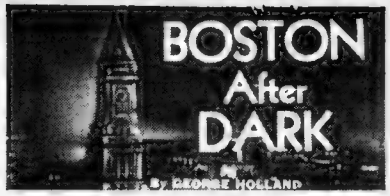
THE PRESIDENT was cautioned last week about inviting the warring labor leaders to his office for a conference. "They may have a fight right in this office, Mr. President," he was warned. "Right here?" Roosevelt replied. "What better place could anybody find?"



EXCLUSIVE: Boston had a tremendous stake in the outcome of the recent congressional battle on the arms embargo . . . Millions were ready for development of the waterfront, with the Atlantic avenue frontage getting first consideration . . . The project was keyed to this port's advantage of proximity to Europe—"a day nearer than New York" . . . When American vessels were legislated out of the belligerent zones, plans were stopped . . . One stipulation was that the "L" structure on Atlantic avenue was to be torn down forthwith, and solution of this bothersome matter was to have been left to the city . . . It's all ended now—for the time at least . . . But the unsightly and useless "L" structure still clogs a potentially busy thoroughfare.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Larry Schwab's bad luck with "Nice Goin' "—they say the musical won't get to New York—meant good luck for Schwab's former writing and producing partner, B. C. "Buddy" De Sylva . . . The Schwab show had been booked into the attractive 46th Street Theater . . . De Sylva's "Du Barry Was a Lady" now gets that choice and capacious house . . . It was at the 46th Street (then Chanin's 46th Street Theater) that "Good News" and "Follow Thru" both played . . . Schwab and De Sylva made a million or so each out of those song and dance items of the roaring '20's! . . . Speaking of the "roaring '20's," it occurs to us that Mark Hellinger, in giving that title to his new motion picture, has exactly halved a descriptive phrase of the Texas Guinan-Larry Fay speakeasy era . . . They were the "roaring '40' "—streets not years—when Mark was covering the Broadway beat and Texas was the best news source in the Big Town.

MAYOR TOBIN WON an important personal victory in the appointment of his friend and supporter, Freddie Sullivan, as Sheriff of Suffolk County . . . The new Sheriff was signer of those ads in the recent election which urged the voters to make it possible for a Boston mayor to succeed himself . . . Sheriff Sullivan, incidentally, was regarded as certain mayoralty timber for the future.

THE "UPFLASH" DODGE is one of the few terrors of their business that the bookmaking fraternity has failed to cope with successfully in the past . . . The "upflash" is worked by a set of smoothies operating at tracks where the daily handle is not very heavy . . . By "padding" the price of one or more horses in a race, another horse—the one elected to win—gets away at a very good price, and in many cases this is an "overlay" The books, meanwhile, have been "loaded" . . . This dodge does not necessitate the fixing of a race.

FREQUENTLY THE LOGICAL winner is the one chosen as the subject of a betting coup . . . Two years ago at New Orleans this racket was worked so successfully that it threatened the existence of some of the largest "books" in the country . . . Horses which should have been odds-on favorites were leaving the barrier at prices of four and five to one . . . And because of the small "handle" at the track operated by the New Orleans "clique," sometimes as little as a thousand dollars was needed to bring about the unnatural odds.

STUDIOS IN BATTLE FOR 'POLONAISE'

By Louella O. Parsons

George Raft

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 16 Just talked with Hal Wallis on the long distance telephone from Hollywood. He tells me he tried to get me after he read my story that Paramount planned to do "Polonaise." Said Hal, "It's a curious coincidence that Arthur Hornblow plans to do a picture based on the recent Warsaw tragedy. Mark Hellinger and Michael Fessier wrote a story after they heard the 'Polonaise' on the radio and it was so good I accepted it some time ago. They wrote about a prize fighter who goes to Poland to rescue his mother, father and brother and I planned to use George Raft as the fighter. Our story is completed and we are using the old title, 'Patent Leather Kid.' "

MARJORIE WEAVER

Well, I am too far away from Hollywood to referee the battle so here's luck to the winner. Paramount's story is about an American football hero of Polish descent who goes back to the old country to rescue his grandmother. Joel McCrea is the gridiron hero and Maria Ouspenskaya plays the grandmother.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD AND SAN FRANCISCO: The Norma Shearer-George Raft dinner dates will be interrupted - at least while George takes himself on a vacation to Honolulu. He and Mack Gray take off on the China Clipper Dec. 12, and if they like it they'll stay through Christmas; Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne are doing terrific business here with "The Taming of the Shrew." Now is that fair of Alfred, Lynn and Shakespeare to give me and the kids such competition? From Hollywood I heard that Barbara Read and Donald Briggs have set their wedding date for February.

SPEAKING OF NEWLYWEDS, Rochelle Hudson is home with her groom, who is going to take over an agency for those little gasoline shooters; Irvin S. Cobb is so much improved in health that he's gone to Texas on a duck hunting jaunt; our romantic love birds, Jane Wyman and Ronald Reagan, went up to the top of the Mark Hopkins to see the San Francisco skyline at sunset—and what a breath-taking sight that is.

BARBARA STANWYCK AND BOB TAYLOR aren't remaining in the East long. They're staying on for the Notre Dame-USC game and then heading home to Hollywood immediately; is the Wallace Beery-Mae Murray twosome getting serious? They were together again at the Hollywood Guild Somerset House luncheon getting a ringside closeup of Sylvia Fairbanks modeling hats; my spies tell me that Marjorie Weaver is making Rudy Vallee's heart beat a little faster these evenings. She was with him at the Beachcombers two nights in a row.

DAILY STORY

Disillusioned

SHE WAS SLENDER, frail and exquisitely beautiful as she swayed like a tall white rose in the breeze.

The musical comedy was good, but it was she who had packed the theater beyond capacity for weeks.

For the twelfth consecutive performance she was wearing orchids HE had sent.

Occupying the same seat in the second row for the twelfth night was a dark, lean Harvard boy of twenty-two.

He was obviously bored, restless and impatient until the lights were dimmed and the soft music, suggestive of the Near East, announced her dance.

LILY LANE seemed half-mist, half-foam, as she floated in a cloud of tulle on to the stage.

The Harvard boy gasped. He leaned forward, his eyes riveted on the vision of beauty before him. His mind seemed to waft into another world.

There was another boy in the seat ahead—a younger boy . . . only seven. He, too, leaned forward, gazed up to the stage. The older woman by his side nudged him, spoke in his ear.

White lights faded into blue, and Lily Lane went into the slow, rhythmic theme of her dance. Out, out toward the audience she glided, like a swallow at sunset.

Suddenly she stopped as one drained of emotion and stared into space. Wide-eyed, expressionless she stood there motionless, as the lights deepened into rose and sent golden sunbeams through her platinum hair.

THE AUDIENCE was hypnotized, breathless.

And then the tension snapped. Lily Lane swayed and fell in a limp white heap to the footlights.

The little boy in the seat ahead was rising. His piercing cry stabbed the bleak stillness.

"Mother!" he screamed.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

SO YOU THINK you're through? Yes, you're still young enough, smart enough, to make a go of things. But you've taken such a beating from life that you've nothing left to give. You can't feel. You can't care. You can go through the scheduled motions, but inside you're a blank.

But wait a minute. Are you really a blank . . . actually burnt out—finished—through—with nothing to give any more? Or have you just grown some scar tissue that's covering the old, vital core of you? Let's think it over.

There's a scrap of interest from the scientific columns which may give you a different slant about yourself. For years the wise boys have been trying to figure how life on this world first happened. Where'd it come from?

MILLIONS have wondered. Among them Dr. Charles B. Lipman of the University of California. If a meteor had carried life, then a meteor would show the trace of life, he reasoned. So he took a meteorite. Soaked it with antiseptics, burned it in flaming alcohol. Split it through to its heart and dropped that heart into a sterile flask. AND BACTERIA GREW IN THAT FLASK!

So, by indisputable evidence there was life inside a meteorite, even after it had passed through every test which could eliminate life—by poison, frost, flood and flame. So what? We don't know yet. Doctor Lipman's experiment did not prove that life came to this world via a meteorite. But it did prove that LIFE PERSISTS EVEN THOUGH IT PASSES THROUGH EVERY KNOWN ORDEAL OF DEATH.

LIFE PERSISTS in a meteorite. And life persists in man . . . in you . . . in me . . . in those bankrupt creatures who feel they have come to the end, who are broken by countless shocks and failures, robbed of their self respect and their desire to live. Still, in spite of everything—heartbreak and humiliation, loss and despair—life persists. YOU CANNOT RUB IT OUT. THERE, UNDER THE SCAR TISSUE OF DEADENING EXPERIENCE, IT LINGERS AND AWAITS ITS RESURRECTION.

Radio's Vass Family Headlines RKO Boston's Stage Bill

Their Program Of Songs Varied

The Vass Family, popular Southern radio quintette, head the stage show at the RKO-Boston Theater, where the screen features are "Hidden Power," with Jack Holt and Gertrude Michael, and "Sued for Libel," co-starring Kent Taylor and Lillian Bond.

The four Vass sisters and their brother have an extensive repertoire that includes streamlined folk-songs, Tin Pan Alley hits and Negro spirituals.

Others in the current vaudeville revue are Boston's own Wally Brown, assisted by Tiny Annette Ames; Bellett and the English Brothers; Toy and Wing and the Five Canestrellys

The feature picture is "Hidden Power."

UPTOWN'S NEW BILL

"Honeymoon in Bali," co-starring Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray, and "Nurse Edith Cavell," starring Anna Neagle, come to the Uptown screen, starting tomorrow

De Cou Lecture Tomorrow Night

Branson De Cou, travel lecturer, is presenting the second in his series of "Dream Pictures" tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. in Tremont Temple. The talk, "Cruising to Chile," is to be repeated Saturday afternoon at 2:15.

His Success Code

Hassard Short, who directed Michael Todd's successful production, "Hot Mikado," now in its final week at the Boston Opera House, was an actor for years, but always wanted to be a director.

"I always applied for the stage manager's job," he says.

That is his only formula for directorial success—and and "the happy circumstance that the formative stages of my professional career occurred during the heyday of the British theater and, in part, of the American."

Jamaica Marks 20th Birthday

In observance of its 20th anniversary, the M. & P. Jamaica Theater is showing the excellent Bette Davis-starring production, "The Old Maid," the latter part of the week. Paired with the feature picture, which has George Brent and Miriam Hopkins for supporting artists, will be "Torchy Plays With Dynamite," starring Jane Wyman.

Symphony's Guest

Igor Stravinsky will be the composer and guest conductor of the next pair of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Symphony Hall. These will take place a week from next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, following the orchestra's first visit of the season to New York.

"Jeu de Cartes" ("The Card Game"), a ballet in three deals, will be presented for the first time in Boston.

Sets Records In Many Cities

"Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," Frank Capra's latest Columbia production which opens today on Loew's State and Orpheum screens, is outstripping last year's Academy Award winner, "You Can't Take It With You," in many cities where it has been shown.

Appropriately enough, three of its brightest personalities — Jean Arthur, James Stewart and Edward Arnold—appeared in "You Can't Take It With You."

Stewart plays the title role. Young Jeff Smith is head of his state's Boy Rangers, and when a vacancy in the United States Senate has to be filled, his name comes to the attention of the ruling political forces who want the appointee to be a harmless and inexperienced stooge.

Jeff goes to Washington unaware of these vital facts. Miss Arthur, his secretary, is inclined to scoff at him until she falls in love with him.

Young Senator Smith's revolt provides one of the year's memorable series of sequences. It provides, as well, a thrilling closeup of back-of-the-scenes Washington.

Sidney Buchman wrote the screen play.

Trans-Lux Star

SPENCER TRACY
In 'Murder Man'

Trans-Lux Theater, starting tomorrow, will present a supershocker, double mystery-thriller program for the week.

Spencer Tracy, co-starred with Virginia Bruce in "Murder Man," will portray a newspaperman who scoops the town on the story of a man who is murdered as he drives his car past a shooting gallery where three men are shooting at targets. He aids in bringing the murderer to justice. Supporting players are Lionel Atwill, Harvey Stephens and Robert Barrat.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 16—Sidney Lanfield is in Washington, D. C. on a hurrriedly arranged appointment with the French ambassador, Count De Saisaint-Quentin, on the possibility of getting Charles Boyer back to this country for his next picture, "Public Deb No. 1."

When Publicity Deb" was first announced it was scheduled as a Linda Darnell picture but a switch in plans puts its Nancy Kelly into the role which features a Brenda Frazer type of debutante.

Hal Wallis and Arthur Hornblow aren't the ornonly producers battling over a similar idea with their Polish stories. "Too Many Husbands" and "My Favorite Wife" are also in a muddle. "Too Many Husbands" is based on the Somerset Maugham story and is being made at Columbia with Jean Arthur, Fred MacMurray and Melvin Douglas. There is an Enoch Arden twist when the first husband comes back after a long absence.

"My Favorite Wife" is the Leo McCarey original to be directed by Garson Kanin with Irene Dunne and Cary Grant starred. In this case the Enoch Arden angle revolves around the wife.

HOW GERMAN SPY WAS CAPTURED

civil court, so together he and Muller faced the civic authorities in the Old Bailey in May, 1915.

Clear enough was the evidence—letters in invisible ink giving information to the enemy, demands for money in payment for the information, the tobacco advertisement ciphers, the letters which were received in Muller's name after the arrest.

He was found guilty of espionage in the first degree and was sentenced to face a firing squad in the ancient Tower of London, scene of so many executions through the centuries, the second World War spy to meet his death in England.

Hahn pleaded successfully that he was not guilty of the major offense of spying, having merely acted under orders. He was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude.

The tall, gaunt Muller, still with the creases of worry in his brow, appealed his sentence, but his appeal was denied.

On June 22, 1915, Muller was transferred from Brixton prison to the gray stone pile that is the Tower, a few hundred yards from London bridge on a bank of the Thames.

In two taxicabs the grim party were progressing toward the tower when the machine carrying Muller, the driver and two military police broke down in Upper Thames st.

The combination of the London lunch hour, the huge throngs on the street and the sight of a civilian obviously under guard of two officers and apparently headed for the Tower drew a crowd about the cabs.

Some one in the assembly—it was inevitable—finally shouted, "Spy," and the cry was taken up by the rest.

"German spy! German spy!" went echoing along Upper Thames st., and the crowd pressed closer to the cab in which sat the frightened Muller.

It was an anxious few minutes for the condemned man and his guardians alike until another cab could be procured and a hasty transfer made to the second vehicle.

Slowly the new cab forged through the crowd, with the seething throng shouting epithets at the gaunt captive, and the grim policemen endeavoring vainly to have the throng dispel.

All in the party—and presumably with Muller included in a somewhat doubtful way—were relieved once London Tower had been entered and the huge oak doors locked behind them.

WITH apparent fortitude Muller faced his last night on earth, but as darkness fell and the hours wore on toward his inevitable end, he weakened.

Guards patroling the corridors said that he slept not at all and that he broke down badly at the approach of midnight.

They could hear him sobbing and calling for his wife and children, and there was no longer any pretense now that he had never been in Germany, for he pleaded with God to send him back safely.

Outside, the rumble of the traffic lessened in the streets, darkened against air raids, and only the occasional peep of an auto horn or the clopping of a cabhorse served too break the quiet falling upon London Town.

Muller either drained his emotions or succeeded in fight them down, because, as the early morning hours slowly passed, there was silence from the cell of the condemned man.

When the Provost-Marshal and the execution officials came to tell him the fateful hour had arrived, the German was fairly calm as he stood up in his lankness and said, shakily, that he was ready.

Through the barred windows of the ancient tower the first pale grey of dawn was visible as Muller was led into the miniature rifle range were his German compatriot, Carl Hans Lody, officer of the Imperial German Navy and the first World War spy to be executed in England, had sat before the firing squad seven months earlier.

If the British execution officials had expected to experience difficulty with Muller at the end, they soon learned their error.

The dour German appeared to be picking up composure with every second, and now he surprised them by insisting he be allowed to shake hands with the eight British soldiers ranged at the east wall of the chamber.

Hastily the officials conferred. Was it proper? Could it be allowed? What did regulations say? Well, regulations apparently had not considered this sort of thing.

The officials finally gave their consent, and the tall man with the fierce moustaches, wearing only shirt, trousers and shoes, went solemnly along the line of men waiting to blast him into eternity and shook the hand of each embarrassed rifleman as he muttered:

"I bear you no ill will for doing your duty. I bear you no ill will for doing your duty. I bear you no ill will for doing your duty."

Eight times, while the thread of his existence grew thinner and thinner, he said that.

Then he was led to the snug, squat chair resting against the west wall and he seated himself without assistance and suffered himself to be blindfolded and the shirt unbuttoned and his chest bared.

"Are you all ready, sergeant-major?"

"Atm!"

The eight rifles, seven loaded with ball, one with blank, came to eye.

Suddenly the assistant provost marshal brought down his stick, and with the motion the rifles crashed and the sound went echoing and re-echoing through the grim cairn. Herr Muller sagged in the squat chair, as if wearied of it all.

Boston After Dark

WITH THE DEATH OF THE "SERVICE"—it is the operation of the "upflash" dodge that has the tookies worried . . . With the "services" out it will be a virtual impossibility to get down a huge bet in any part of the east . . . The boys are not going to take the chance of having a logical even money shot leave the barrier at a price of ten to one.

MEMO TO GEORGE CLARKE: You have me singing that old torcher, "Somebody Loves Me"—but to myself . . . I didn't say you called me a tenor . . . I was thanking you for letting your wide public suspect that I wasn't . . . And Georgie: You may be right about Joe Vosmik. Spring will tell . . . But Lillian Foster is approximately our age . . . Maybe a few years older . . . It was in 1924 or 1925 that she took a swipe at Hannen Swaffer's chin in dear ol' Lunnon . . . It was in 1923 or '24 that she played the starring role in Don Mullally's compelling play, "Conscience" . . . She will doubtless thank you for your sympathy, but for calling her grand, little old lady and a beauty of the 1900's—oh, migosh . . . The gal can probably still hit . . . Swaffer was never the same after she connected with his button.

STUBBORN RHEUMATIC PAIN
When Aggravated by Excess Uric Acid

Thousands take ALLENRU for the pains of rheumatism, neuritis, lumbago or rheumatic backache when aggravated by excess uric or other circulating poisons. Such excess acids and poisons should soon start to leave your body and thus the terrible agony is often relieved—no powders—no opiates.

Ask any live druggist in America for an 8 ounce bottle of ALLENRU—a liquid. It costs about 85 cents—save this notice.

"Alkalize" upsetting stomach acids this amazing Phillips' way

NO, DO THIS AS SOON AS YOU GET READY FOR BED—
Take 2 tablespoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water.
You'll feel wonderful in the morning and do a swell job.

Wake up clear-headed and peppy...no "morning-after" acid upsets or headache.

If you over-indulge—eat or drink too much—stay out all hours . . . don't "pay the piper" in the morning. Instead of a session of OVER-ACIDITY of the stomach that can get you really down and spoil the whole next day, do this:

Follow the routine in the pictures here . . . with Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia . . . one of the most remarkable stomach alkalizers known. Just two tablespoonfuls at bedtime and two in the morning with your orange juice . . . that's all.

But the results: You'll be on top of the world when you wake up! No nausea, no terrible acid upsets. It's wonderful. Try this remarkable method. See for yourself what it does.

You can get Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in either liquid or tablet form at any drug store. Ask for it by its full name and check the words "Genuine Phillips' " on the blue package.

Maine Man Dies Here of Burns

Philip A. Clifford, 47, of Naples, Me., son of a prominent Portland clergyman, died in Boston City Hospital today of burns suffered in a South End hotel fire yesterday.

Clifford was overcome in an early morning blaze that started in his room in the crowded building a short while after he had entered the lobby, cut and bleeding, and reported that thugs had held him up and stolen his car.

As police were receiving that report at the Warren ave. station, a pedestrian phoned to say that the auto registered to Clifford had crashed into a pole in Massachusetts ave. and that the driver had fled.

Fraher Elected By Police Group

Arthur V. Fraher, day dispatcher at police headquarters, was today elected director of the Boston Police Relief Ass'n, by members of the department.

Glass Saucepan Joy to Use

By MARTHA LEE

The other day we had a request for a good Chili Con Carni recipe. It's the sort of dish that many readers may be interested in, for its hot and full of spicy flavor and ideal for cool weather.

The dish we're talking about is the one pictured here today cooking in a heat resistant glass saucepan. Incidentally, if you haven't used these glass utensils, you really haven't enjoyed cooking to the fullest. And they're no more trouble to wash than your dishes.

LIMA CHILI CON CARNE

1 onion, minced
1 tbsp. butter
2½ cups tomatoes
1 lb. hamburg
1 cups canned lima beans
½ tsp. chili powder
1 tsp. salt

Brown minced onion in melted butter in a 2-quart heat resistant glass saucepan. Add tomatoes, hamburg, lima beans, and seasonings; simmer for 20 minutes. Serve from cooking dish at table. This is a fine dish for cool fall evenings. Serves 8.

Casserole dishes may be prepared hours ahead of the time needed, placed in the refrigerator —then baked just before they are served. And the beauty of baking them in glass ovenware is that the dish may be placed on the table as it comes from the oven—making an attractive serving dish.

CASSEROLE OF SAUSAGE AND EGGPLANT

4 Cups diced eggplant
10 ripe olives, coarsely chopped
2 tsp. salt
1½ cups water
6 pork sausages

Combine eggplant, olives, salt and water in baking dish. Arrange sausages on top and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 20 minutes, turning sausages once during baking. Serve with olive sauce. Makes about 6 portions.

OLIVE SAUCE

3 tbsp. butter
3 tbsp. flour
1½ cups milk
¾ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 egg, slightly beaten
½ cup light cream
1-3 cup chopped ripe olives

Melt butter and stir in flour; gradually stir in milk, and stir until mixture boils and thickens, then cook about 3 minutes longer, stirring occasionally; add seasonings. Add mixture of slightly beaten egg and light cream and cook over hot water 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Add chopped ripe olives. Makes 2 cups sauce.

Cool weather meals also suggest hot desserts. A hot pudding for dinner some night when serving left-overs adds just the surprise element that pulls left-overs out of the ordinary into the unusual class. Make use of your glass baking utensil again and try this delicious pudding.

PEACH BETTY

2 cups bread or cake crumbs
1-3 cup butter
4 cups canned peaches, drained
¼ tsp. nutmeg
½ cup peach juice

Combine the bread crumbs and melted butter and arrange a layer in the bottom of a buttered pudding dish. Then arrange half the peaches as the next layer, sprinkle lightly with nutmeg; repeat, cover with remaining crumbs, add peach juice and bake in moderate oven of 350 deg. F. 40 minutes or until done. Serve with cream or custard sauce.

CUSTARD SAUCE

2 eggs, slightly beaten
¾ cups sugar
Dash of salt
1½ cups milk
½ tsp. vanilla

Combine eggs, sugar and salt in top part of double boiler, stir in milk and place over boiling water. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture coats the spoon. Remove, add vanilla and chill. Makes about 1½ cups sauce.

Manners

Letter to Son's Fiancee

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN,

My son is engaged to a girl in a distant city. I have known of their engagement since last May. I met her at a dinner party this summer. I have never written to her to express my happiness in regard to their engagement. Should I write to her now, and if so, what should I say?

2—My son writes me that he has just returned from visiting at her home for a few days. Should I thank her parents for entertaining him? What should I say? S.

1—Yes, by all means write this so-important letter to your prospective daughter-in-law. Tell her how happy you are about the engagement; how delighted and proud you are to welcome her into your family; how much you are looking forward to knowing her better, and to greeting "your new daughter" in your home.

Tell her how happy it has made you to have your son talk with you about her, "the most wonderful girl in the world." Write affectionately and informally to her, as you naturally would to the girl whom your son is to marry. Every word that you write will be precious to her.

2—Such a note to the young lady's mother might read:

DEAR MRS. BROWN:

I can't begin to tell you how happy you and your husband . . . and need I say lovely Mary? . . . made my son on his recent visit with you. I am sure that it would do your heart good to hear his enthusiastic phrases of devotion to his new "family." My husband and I thank you for your goodness and hospitality to our Ted, and we are looking forward to welcoming you to our home whenever your way turns toward here. May it be soon!

Dearest love to you both from all of us,

Cordially yours,
MARY SMITH WOOD

You Can Be Beautiful

Dry Shampoo Fluffs Hair

By RLINE GOULD

WE REMEMBER the day when anyone who indulged in a dry shampoo went around looking a trifle grey-haired after it . . . but nowadays a good brushing with an improved dry shampoo powder and you've really got something! A sleek, shining coiffure with curls soft as feathers. And, amazingly enough, light hair looks even more golden than after a regular shampoo.

We've found a really wonderful buy in a dry shampoo, a new one that has in it more herbs, marvelous smelling things, than any we've encountered before. And it's so very, very inexpensive. Fifty-five cents for a big packet, which, if you are wise, you'll transfer as you need it into a big salt shaker with generous perforations in the top. One of those kitchen stove shakers, used to season big kettles of soup or a bowl of turkey dressing.

If you've never done it before, there are a few things to remember. One is that the dry shampoo powder has to go somewhere when it's brushed out of your hair, bearing with it all the oil and dust that it has caught. So tie a towel around your shoulders, and even spread papers on your dressing room or bathroom floor.

Separate your hair in small sections all around the head, and sprinkle it well. Leave the dry shampoo on for a moment, then wield your brush with a vim. Try not to sprinkle the shampoo on your scalp if you can help it. Wipe off the brush frequently on a towel. And after it's all over your wave will gleam and glow, and you'll be in line for compliments on its appearance.

Don't wear a dress when you do this little chore. And plan to do it at a time when you can pop into the shower afterward Or at least take a light towel and wipe away the excess shampoo from your neck and ears!

To learn about this excellent, inexpensive new dry shampoo, phone Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, weekdays until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Love And Marriage

Easy to Make Friends

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm over 18 years of age, but don't seem to get into things. I go out occasionally with boys, but most of them consider me cold and indifferent, for you see I don't smoke, drink or pet.

However, as I don't care much for any of these boys, I don't mind what they think. You see I'm really "on my own" to make my place in the social world, and I'd like to know what you would suggest as to meeting new and more interesting people. I'm spending a rather dead existence. Would you please tell me what places a girl can attend alone, or in the company of another girl? I'd like to go some place where I can enjoy myself, a thing I haven't done in ages.

PERPLEXED.

You're very wise not to go in for "S. D. and P." as a correspondent calls smoking, drinking and petting.

You come from a big city—what has it to offer to lonesome girls? Inquire at the "Y. W." They usually keep on hand a list of activities open to young girls. And if I'm not mistaken, there's a very good girls' camp in the suburbs. Join that, to know nice boys; it's well at first to make your way slowly and know girls—these usually have brothers, cousins and friends in whom they are not vitally interested, and they're glad to introduce them to other girls.

To become acquainted with the right people is likely to be a slow and sometimes laborious process. But, my dear, it's worth while. Write again and let me know how you're making out.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

NO MATTER how many rehearsals, you never can tell what a four-year-old will do . . . In spite of the fact that he had his role letter-perfect beforehand, young Master Peter Buswell, who was ring bearer at his Aunt Elizabeth's wedding yesterday, was overcome with stage fright at the crucial moment and had to be led down the aisle by his nurse . . .

The wedding—Elizabeth Jane Robinson and Raoul Pantaleoni were the principals—was one of the most picturesque we have had around here in many a moon . . . It took place at Stillington Hall, the Gloucester home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Buswell (the bride's sister)—in the great baronial dining room which in summertime is converted into a theater for the plays which Mr. Buswell produces . . .

Floor Show to Feature Party at Chilton Club

A FLOOR SHOW of stars from some of the best shows in town will be on the bill of fare after midnight at Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield's dinner dance Saturday night . . .

Thanks to the Saturday curfew which is ordinarily troublesome and prohibits dancing after twelve o'clock, even in private clubs, the debs and their beaus will have the fun of seeing a real midnight show . . . Mrs. Crowninshield and Harry Marshard, who will be master of ceremonies, have a bundle of surprises up their sleeves but neither will tell for fear of spoiling the surprise . . .

The party will be given at the exclusive Chilton Club in honor of Mrs. Crowninshield's niece, Ruth Ellen duPont, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. duPont of Wilmington, Delaware . . . She is coming from Vassar College, Saturday, to spend the weekend with Mrs. Crowninshield . . .

New York debs coming for the dance are the Misses Clara Lloyd Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilton Lloyd Smith, Antoinette Irving, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. duPont Irving, Elisabeth Greene and Nancy Merle Smith . . .

Miss duPont made her debut in Wilmington last June following her graduation from Foxcroft School, where she was an honor student . . .

Program to Aid Faulkner Hospital

MARGARET ADAMS PELTZ of Williamstown, former member of Boston society who used to delight her friends with programs of original monologues, is coming to Milton next Tuesday to give a program for the benefit of the Faulkner Hospital . . .

She will be introduced by Mrs. Joseph H. Bragdon (Marjorie Saltonstall), who heads the committee with Mrs. Roger H. Hallowell . . . Mrs. Peltz's mother, Mrs. Lewis Perry, will come from Exeter, N. H., with Dr. Perry, principal of Phillips Exeter, to attend the affair together with Mrs. John W. Hallowell, Mrs. Henry G. Brooks, Mrs. Lloyd T. Brown, Mrs. Charles F. Mills, Mrs. Alexander Forbes, Mrs. Alexander Ladd, Jr., Mrs. Malcolm Donald, Mrs. Ralph Doane, Mrs. Marshall G. Hall, Miss Ellen Faulkner, Mrs. John P. Hubbard and many other fashionable Miltonites.

Tea Honors Miss Quigley

Cappy and Anne Ryan were hostesses at a tea and shower at their home in Chestnut Hill in honor of Marjorie Quigley, who becomes the bride of Jerry O'Connor of Newton on December's final Saturday in St. Mary's Church, Charlestown.

The bride-elect . . . daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William S. Quigley, of Charlestown and Cape Cod, is a Wellesley graduate and takes active part in young set affairs, and is secretary of the Ace of Clubs. Mr. O'Connor is a graduate of Harvard.

Among the guests at the shower were Mrs. Henry J. Fitzpatrick of Belmont, president of Ace of Clubs, Mrs. John Donovan, Mrs. Bernard Baldwin, Mrs. Joseph Barry, Betty Crosby, Mary Porter and Frances Shea, whose marriage to Dr. Francis Callanan is slated for Jan. 6.

HOT PLUM NECTAR TAPIOCA

(Tested by Good Housekeeping Institute)

INGREDIENTS

¾ c. granulated sugar
⅛ tsp. salt
3 tbsp. quick-cooking tapioca
1 12-oz. can plum nectar
1 tbsp. butter or margarine

METHOD OF PREPARATION

Combine the sugar, salt, tapioca, and plum nectar in a double boiler. Cook over hot water for 20 min., stirring frequently. Remove from heat and add butter. Serve with cream. Serves 3 to 4.

Dr. Eddy's Question Box

Tested and Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau

By DR. WALTER H. EDDY

Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau

"Will you please tell me if mineral oil is fattening?" J. D. H.

The reason that mineral oil makes a satisfactory laxative is that, in addition to softening the matter in our intestines, it is not absorbed from the digestive tract. Hence it cannot function as food. We can get calories only from foods that after digestion are absorbed into the blood and distributed to our body tissues. Mineral oil has little taste and blends well with seasonings. It therefore offers a pleasing means for making salad dressings for those desiring to avoid calories. It is also mildly laxative.

You Are Misinformed

"Will you kindly inform me as to the vitamin content of properly prepared sauerkraut. I understand that cabbage in this form is the best known source of vitamins A, B, C and D." W. G. B.

Raw cabbage is an excellent source of vitamin C—in fact, one of our richest sources of that scurvy-protecting factor. During the fermentation process of sauerkraut making, however, this vitamin undergoes serious destruction; hence sauerkraut is not a good source of this vitamin. Assays in my laboratory have confirmed this point.

Cabbage is a good source of vitamin A, but far from the best source. Even the poorest butter, for example, usually contains at least 50 times as much per unit of weight. Prof. Sherman of Columbia reports that sauerkraut contains five units of vitamin A per ounce, raw cabbage 10 units per ounce, and spinach 1400 units per ounce. These facts sufficiently indicate your misinformation.

The D content of sauerkraut or raw cabbage is so negligible as to be unmeasurable, but few natural foods contain this factor in significant amounts. The B content of cabbage—and, presumably, of sauerkraut—is good, but not of the magnitude of that of cereals with the germ or embryo included. I know of no exact measurements of this factor in sauerkraut.

VITAMIN A is the anti-xerophthalmic vitamin because its omission from the diet results in an eye disease called xerophthalmia. It is a component of butter fat and egg yolk. It is also present in the green leaves of plants, in certain roots, especially those with yellow color (carrots, sweet potatoes, etc.), and to a more abundant degree in fish oils, such as cod liver oil.

"I fear you have been the victim of over-enthusiasm for what is an excellent but not an exceptional food from the vitamin viewpoint.

Tin Cans Are Safe Food Receptacles

"Do you think it advisable to leave such things as tomatoes, spinach, etc., in the can after opening, or is it best to pour them into covered dishes or jars with lids?" H. K.

Extensive experiments in the Food Research Laboratory of the Bureau of Soils of the U. S. Department of Agriculture show that foods packed in tin cans and held for relatively long periods therein did not have any demonstrable toxic effect on the subjects (human and animal) used in the study. This work was under the direction of Dr. F. C. Blanck. We feel, then, that the tin can is a perfectly safe container.

It is true, however that with entrance of air after the can is opened certain taste changes occur which do not develop so rapidly when the food is transferred to glass or porcelain dishes. These changes do not always develop. Your criticism, therefore, is largely a matter of whether products removed from the can and held in other types of container conserve the taste desirable for you.

ST. ANDREW'S PARISH BRIDGE FOR NEEDY

A Complete Short Story Daily on This Page

BY HOLLIS STARNES

NEITHER his best Broadway friend nor his worst enemy would have called Terry McCall religious. He was a good stage manager, one of the best, as any man had to be to work ten years with that temperamental producer of hits, Gordon Reems.

At 28, Terry had seen Broadway come and go. So many beautiful girls threw themselves at Reems' head, his good-looking adjutant avoided the sex, except in connection with his job.

Then it was "business only," though many a Broadway belle preferred the dark-eyed, curly-haired Terry to his boss. But he maintained that his only loves were show business and Kelly pool contests at the Lambs Club.

As to religion, no one ever saw him go to church, or heard him evince an interest in the Scriptures.

"I've got some old copies of Variety and the Bilboard," Tim Holloran answered dryly, "but no Bibles today." Tim was a wiry little fellow, with a round face, a bald pate, and merry blue eyes. He drew a mug of light beer from his tap and pushed it toward his pet customer with a quizzical grin.

"None o' your pals'd be carrying Bibles anyhow," chuckled Jim. "Let's see now," he reflected, 'I once could quote a bit o' the Scripture myself. What's your pleasure, Mac?'

A MIRACLE!

Terry pushed his beer aside and leaned over the bar. "I've just seen a miracle," he exclaimed. "Fact is it happened to me! It was like something in the Bible — about Moses or Peter or—say, who was the guy anyhow, that was on his way some place and saw a light and heard a voice out of nowhere?"

"Could you be meaning St. Paul," hazarded Jim, "on the road to Damascus?"

"If it wasn't Peter," said Terry "it might just as well have been Paul."

"Well I'm no saint," acknowledged Terry McCall, "but I'm telling you this, Jim Halloran. I saw a light and heard a voice—right here in Forty-fifth st."

"You mean Reems will. Well, anyway, for a week now I've been trying out girls for the leading part. A couple of days ago a young dream walked in."

Jim sighed. He was all geared for a miracle, and here was the same old story of boy meets girl. He got up and began to check his stock of Amontillado.

"I don't mean what you mean," Terry snapped. "It didn't even notice what this kid looked like, except she was blondish and fragile with beautiful features and big, eager eyes. She stood right out in the crowd."

"When she started reading the part," Terry plunged on, "boy, what power she had, what quality! The appeal of a young Helen Hayes. A real discovery!"

"And is this your miracle?" scoffed Jim.

"Will you hold your face," demanded Terry McCall, "till I finish my story?"

"When she finished yesterday," Terry picked up the thread of his tale, "I told her to come back this morning. I was going to put her through the whole part. I gave her such a buildup to Reems that she was coming in from Long Island to hear her this afternoon. Well, she arrives for rehearsal and what do you think?"

"I'm holdin' my face." Jim jabbed neatly.

"Right!" Terry grinned. "Well, she started off bad and kept getting worse. The more I yelped at her, the flatter she fell. I felt like a fool, and the boss was already on his way."

"Don't you suppose," Terry flayed him, "I'd sense enough to ask her that, you poor omathon?" But she said she wasn't sick. She just stood there and said nothing. So I told her to go home, there was no use wasting Reems' valuable time. As she left, I yelled to the doorman to switch off the light, and I sat there by myself in the dark, wondering what ailed the girl."

The Cast of Characters in "Miracle in 45th Street"

BARBARA, Terry's miracle.

JIM, a patient barkeep.

"I've just seen a miracle," Terry exclaimed. "Fact is, it happened to me! It was like something in the Bible . . ."

Jim came back to his stool. He sensed the miraculous moment was due. It was.

Terry lowered his voice. "All of a sudden," he whispered, "there seemed to be light all around me."

"Was it a blinding light?" Jim inquired. "That's what hit Paul and struck him stone blind."

"This was different," said Terry irritably. "It just kind of encircled me. Then a voice said, plain as I'm telling you now, Jim Holloran—— 'She's hungry!'."

"She's what?" Jim gasped.

"Hungry," repeated Terry. "Ever know the feeling?"

"Many's the time," admitted his listener.

"So did she. I found that out later on. But talk about pride! I'd never have pried the truth out of her," and his voice registered respectful awe, "if the miracle hadn't happened."

"What next?" Jim prompted.

"I galloped out the stage door after her," confessed the Broadway bachelor. "Me—can you imagine—that's never run after a dame in my life?"

"The best of us fall some time," sighed the philosopher.

"When I caught up with her," he related, "I couldn't remember the kid's name. 'Listen,' I said and so help me, the words fell out like I was playing a part, 'I want to apologize for being so jumpy just now.'

"She looked up at me and her face was white as chalk. She's got eyes big as saucers, Jim——"

"Yeah —— eager," nodded Jim.

"Terry let it pass. "Before she could say a word I heard myself telling her I'd had no breakfast and that's what ailed me. But, says I, 'If you'll come over to Sardi's restaurant with me, we can do a bit of work on the part while I eat. Maybe you'd join me in a bite yourself.'"

"I'll bet that sounded like good news."

"This kid was so proud," Terry boasted, "I had a terrible time getting her to touch food."

"Mebbe the voice was a phony?"

"No!" shouted Terry. "She'd been living on a loaf of bread and a jar of peanut butter for a week. Her peanut butter gave out yesterday. Today the bread went mouldy."

The bartender blinked.

"Poor little kid was so unstrung I argued an hour before I could get a bowl of soup inside of her."

"So her name's Barbara."

"A bit long," Jim started counting on his fingers.

"No longer than Katharine Cornell or Tallulah Bankhead," defended Terry. "Listen, when that kid lands on top—and she will—they won't stint on electric lights." His eyes were on Forty-fifth Street, but his mind was traveling forward in time and space.

"What happened after the soup?" his listener jerked him back to the present.

HER LIFE STORY

"She told the story of her life," said Terry dreamily. "She comes from upstate near the Canadian border. Dad's the town druggist. Babby taught Sunday-school and all that. She can't imagine what gave her the Broadway yen."

"Mebbe another miracle," Jim suggested dryly.

"It sure was," responded Terry solemnly. "Well, after we both told each other our life histories, and I got some solid food inside of Babs, it was half past three, and the boss was due at four. But boy, what a reading she gave him!"

"What did His Nibs think of Babs?"

Terry flung a handful of Jim's potato chips in the air. "Told me to have her read again tomorrow with the cast," he proclaimed jubilantly. "If she's okay then—and she will be—she's all set."

Terry threw a bill across the counter. His beer was still untouched. "Have a plate of soup on me," he grinned and started out. "I'll be seeing you."

"Thanks," Jim called after him. "Say, Mac—while you been talkin' it's come back to me, that bit in the Bible about St. Paul on the road to Damascus."

Terry was at the door. "When the boys come in," he directed, "tell 'em about McCall on the road to Forty-fifth st."

"God forgive him," said Jim Holloran, solemnly, as he looked out after Terry. "Sure he don't mean to be sacrilegious. But at that, fallin' in love on Forty-fifth st is one kind of a miracle!"

Don't miss tomorrow's complete short story. It is called "The Trouble With Amy." You'll like John, the rich widower, and his sister who comes to live with him.

Business Index Reaches New High

EIGHT STRAIGHT . . . Weekly increases have lifted the index of business activity to a new recovery high . . . It now stands at the best level since May 1937 . . . Two points above the 1926-equals-normal mark . . . and 13 points above the "good" level of a year ago.

INDICATIONS . . . Of a rounding but around present activity levels are seen . . . But nowhere do significant signs of recovery weakening show. And there is such an obvious supply of materials to sustain trade that an important setback is not visioned for some weeks to come . . . In fact if the experience of other upswinging years is duplicated, 1938 for example, the high has not been reached as yet . . . Sole question on this point is the influence of two Thanksgiving Days . . . Which may spread trade a bit thinly over the final weeks of November.

E. S. COLDWELL . . . Of Ford, Bacon & Davis, Inc., of New York, addresses members of the Boston Chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants at their regular meeting tonight . . . Mr. Coldwell has chosen "Inventories—Their Taking and Checking," for his subject . . . A noted authority on inventory matters, he will relate from his personal experiences many examples found both annoying and amusing . . . He will also devote a portion of his comments to the kind and manner of keeping records . . . Clinton W. Bennett, former president of the Boston Chapter, will preside at the meeting, which will be held at 16 West st. . . .

EMPLOYMENT . . . Has reached the highest level since October, 1937 . . . How can we support that statement, which is broad, to say the least . . . In a very unique way . . . For it is based on accident records . . . Daily reports complemented by payroll audits of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Co. . . . And Charles E. Hodges, president of the company, says they show a new employment peak . . . And in addition he reports there is no indication as yet of a levelling off in the trend . . . While it is reasonable to expect further advances before a recession . . . For those of us believing that as manufacturing payrolls go we, too, does recovery this is "fine kettle of fish" . . .

STOCK PRICES . . . Continue their marches up hill and down again . . . With never an indication of getting tired . . . It would be dreary enough even if animation was shown . . . Without it each passing session is almost a total loss . . . And many traders and observers are tempted to fall asleep . . . Which makes it just about the wrong time to relax tape vigilance . . . The market as always, is working out its own destiny . . . And if this latest "down hill again" fails to get anywhere be alert for a push higher . . . Steel and motor news is nothing short of wonderful . . . In those groups lie potential leaders . . . Stocks capable of promoting and sustaining a real move.

Pullman Dividend

CHICAGO, Nov. 16 (AP)—Pullman, Inc., declared today a dividend of 25 cents a share, payable Dec. 15 to stockholders of record Nov. 24. The dividend brought the total payments for the year to $1.

Steels Lead Comeback In Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—Quiet buying in steels and a number of other recent laggards today put a little more heart into the stock market.

Slightly lower levels prevailed at the start, but minus signs were soon erased in most cases. Dealings picked up on the come-back, but were still relatively sluggish. Gains ran to a point or so for favorites.

The fact business and industry have far outdistanced stock market trends continued to puzzle the majority of financial analysts, but it was felt the speculative fraternity might be coming around to the idea that the possibility of share prices narrowing the gap was at least moderately improved.

Part of the apathy of past weeks again was attributed to lack of important developments in Europe's static war, chances of a letdown in the business recovery swing, and thoughts of boosted corporation taxes at the next session of Congress.

Bonds showed selective popularity. Foreign securities markets were irregular and commodities followed varying directions.

Monopoly Probers' Files Ransacked

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—An official of the monopoly committee disclosed today that confidential files of the committee's staff had been ransacked twice within recent months.

He said that apparently nothing was taken on either occasion, but he attributed "leaks of important information" to the fact that the files, relating to the commitee investigation of life insurance companies, had been broken into.

Carloadings Dip

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today 785,961 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday. This was a decrease of 19,901 cars, or 2.5 per cent, compared with the preceding week, an increase of 149,515, or 26.5 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 100,035, or 14.6 per cent, compared with 1937.

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

THE REMARKABLE success of Eddie Shore playing for the Bruins against the Chicago Black Hawks was due to his natural ability plus timing. I have been watching Shore playing hockey for a great many years, and find that when he makes one of his spectacular moves on the ice his timing is usually perfect.

Power and speed are of very little avail without correct timing. What is true of hockey is also true of baseball, football, boxing and other sports.

The great forward passer is the one who can toss the pigskin with speed and accuracy to the point where there is going to be a free receiver.

In boxing, the knockout blow often does not travel more than six to eight inches, but the timing of the punch must be 100 per cent. At the point of contact the boxer delivering the blow must have every ounce of strength in his body behind the big smash.

Joe Cronin spent much time with Ted Williams last season to improve his timing. Williams had a habit of taking a wild, reckless cut at the ball. Cronin told Williams it wasn't necessary for him to knock the ball out of the park every time he was at bat, and that he would increase his effectiveness if he at times reduced his swing and improved on his time.

Babe Ruth was one of the most amazing ball players I have ever seen at the plate. Ball players are taught to always keep their eyes on the ball. When Ruth would take his backward swing, he could take his eyes off the ball. His remarkable eyesight enabled him to pick the ball up in mid-air, and then bounce it over the outfield wall.

The element of timing was a factor in this rare ability to hit the ball under such conditions.

Everett H. Vail, attached to the Boston police traffic squad and one of the crack shots of Joe Timilty's department, says timing has been an important factor as he has established new records with the revolver.

"One must have perfect co-ordination of the muscles and accurate timing to hit a bull's eye with five bullets fired inside of ten seconds at a distance of 25 yards," said Vail.

Veteran Players Make Few False Moves

SHORE HAS lost some of his tremendous speed during the past two years, but he was still one of the chief factors in the Stanley Cup victory of the Bruins last season. Shore always knew when to make his move on the ice, and was usually at the spot necessary to stop the march of the opposition.

I find that veteran athletes make themselves effective after they have lost their speed as a result of their ability at timing.

Shore will help the Bruins in their home games. He will also prove a good box office attraction.

This is why the Bruins refused to give Shore an unconditional release to Springfield. The management of the Bruins felt that Eddie had another good year of hockey in him, and it contended Boston fans were entitled to it.

Shore also acts as a steadying influence on the numerous young players in the lineup of the Bruins.

The Bruins, due to the efforts of Art Ross, have the best group of youngsters on any National Hockey League team. These youthful players will continue to improve, and as a result it should be some time before the opposition is able to dislodge the world's champions.

The Bruins have the same power in hockey that the Yanks possess in baseball.

The 12,000 crowd at the Bruins opening game showed that Boston is very much hockey minded. Hockey interest will pick up when the football season ends, and it will be going on high after the Christmas holidays.

Long Shot Players Having Their Innings

LONG SHOT players are having their innings at Narragansett Park . . . Air Eddy at $90.60 and Five O Five at $32 were attractive for the boys and girls who only bet on horses that are going to pay large prices . . . With many horses already shipped to Maryland, the owners of ordinary horses now have a chance to win . . . This type of horse often comes home at a big price . . . Narragansett will close on Saturday after which time most of the horsemen will journey to Bowie.

JOHNNY SKHOR, who was one of the stars in the All-America ring show a few years ago, will return to Boston to box under the direction of Johnny Buckley . . . Skhor was boxing as a professional when he suffered an attack of appendicitis . . . An operation was necessary, and Skhor was obliged to take a long layoff.

Local football interest will center around the Boston College-Boston University game on Saturday . . . Pat Hanley has his Boston University eleven in good condition, and it will give the Maroon and Gold outfit real competition.

TERRIERS, EAGLES READY FOR CLASH

The Eagles of Boston College and the Terriers of Boston University are about ready for that important game of football they have scheduled at Tom Yawkey's Fenway Park two days hence.

Both teams will enter the contest in near top shape, though Boston College, as was the case last week in Detroit, will have to get along without Fullback Frank Davis and Tackle Lou Kidhardt and the Terriers may have to play without first string end Jim McDonald, who incidentally missed the Hanley's game with Cincinnati last week.

The teams did quite well with these three men out of the lineups, so their absence may not be the handicap which it appeared when the men were forced out of action 10 days ago.

EAGLES PLAN TO GET JUMP

Judging from the way it has been working this week, Boston College hopes for a couple of quick stabs to kill off the pesky Terriers.

The Eagles have devoted much time to perfecting a defense against the passing attack which they expect to start swirling around their ears before the game is many minutes old.

Yesterday the Eagles nest was the scene of a lengthy pass defense drill. First and second string left halfbacks respectively, Charlie O'Rourke and Bob Jauron were pitching and the entire cast of backfield hopefuls had the opportunity to defend at one time or another during the workout.

The sophomore backs, who through inexperience have been victims of high powered passing attacks in past games were given an extra amount of work.

LEAHY FIRST TEAM SET

Coach Frank Leahy said that he was ready to open with the same eleven which did starting honors last week in Detroit.

While Boston College will have its top lineup on the starting firing line, quarterback Henry Toczylowski and guard George Kerr aren't in the best shape of their lives and may not last long. Both suffered leg injuries at Detroit, and if the injuries kick up, and the boys are forced out the chances of the opposition are bound to pick up.

Williams' Toe May Keep Boston College at Bay

Boston University will be outmanned and outrushed by Boston College but it won't be outkicked.

Last Saturday stories came back from Cincinnati, where the Terriers scored an upset victory, telling of Jimmy Cassidy's brilliant 80-yard touchdown run and of Williams' great pass for another score, but nothing was said about Walt's kicking.

The truth of the matter is that if it had not been for the booting of Williams the Terriers would have gone down to defeat.

Williams kicked 11 times last Saturday for the terrific average of 43¼ yards from the line of scrimmage. This is little short of remarkable in view of the fact that one kick went into the end zone which cost him 20 yards for a boot into the end zone is measured only from the line of scrimmage to the 20-yard line.

On another occasion, he deliberately kicked only 17 yards to put the ball out of bounds on the Bearcat 12

Hanley Greets B. C.

A gueasture of friendship and good sportsmanship was made this morning at Boston College when Head Coach Pat Hanley and assistant Walt Holmer were guest speakers at a pre-Boston University game student rally on Alumni Field.

The Terrier football teachers were introduced by Rev. Patrick Collins, S. J. Other speakers were B. C. Coach Frank Leahy, Capt. Ernie Schwotzer, George Kerr [illegible]

Macdonald In Top Form For Windup

By DAVE GLUECK

Harvard's hard luck captain, Torby Macdonald, came into his own as he starred in scrimmage against the junior varsity.

Torby, who has played less than half an hour all season was at his old tail back position on A team, and took part in all the work, including a 30-minute stationary scrum.

Coach Harlow was not satisfied with the sham battle claiming that the blocking lacked precision and force. Nevertheless, Torby broke clear half a dozen times, completed several passes, and threw some very decisive blocks. On sweeps and off-tackle plays, he ran like a Harlow sophomore repeatedly outdistancing the scrub secondary.

LOWRY HURT

Don Lowry, who has been alternating with Chub Peabody at short guard, suffered an injury that made him yield his contact place to Jim Grunig. The doctors will not be able to determine the extent of the ailment until late today.

Ayres, Heiden, and Peabody were held out of scrimmage because of bumps received in the Army game, but all are expected to be ready for New Hampshire on Saturday.

Incidentally, handsome Mr. Sauer expects to bring a capable Wildcat combination into the Stadium this week-end.

The White Mountain boys don't suffer inferiority complexes very easily, and in spite of the fact that they've dropped decisions to Rutgers, Colby, Maine, and Springfield, they're up again and in good shape for the big last one.

HARLOW TAKES NO CHANCES

The fox of Soldiers Field is not unaware of this, and although the Yale game is only a week and a day away, he has been spending some time on New Hampshire plays.

Whether or not he will start Macdonald against the Sauer men, depends on him alone. With a clean bill of health from the doctors, and all of his former ability, nothing remains between Torby and touchdowns but a nod from the bench.

Naturally, he is desperately eager to redeem a disappointing season, in his last two varsity games. On the other hand, Charlie Spreyer, sophomore tailback who sparked the Army win, has competently filled his captain's shoes.

Spreyer will be playing tailback next year, and Harlow wants to prepare by giving him as much second year service as possible. So the battle continues for the lineup honor, with only Dick in on the answer.

Harvard's scrimmage lineups were, A team—Le, MacKinney; lt, Miller; lg, Lowry, and Grunig; c, Grover; rg, Phister; rt, Healey; re, Lovett; qb, Coleman; lhb, Macdonald; rhb, Gardella; fb, Heiden.

ALUMNI GOSSIP

Alex Kevorkian, former Harvard tackle, coaching line for Chief Boston at University school, writes that their team wound up the season with a win over Western Reserve Academy, the traditional rival. This makes four for six, or a pretty good first year average.

Russ Allen, Harvard captain in 1937, is coaching and teaching at Middlesex School. His team beat Portsmouth Priory, and St. Georges, coached by Don Daughters and Win Jameson, both boys who played with Allen at Harvard.

UNNING WILD — Capt. orby Macdonald flashes head with all his old-time peed as he proves fit in Soldiers Field drill. He hopes to ake up for a season's idleness against New Hampshire

Test for Bruins Minus Shore

By the Associated Press

Some of the question marks should be taken out of the National Hockey League picture tonight by a couple of games that match Boston's Stanley Cup champions against the undefeated Montreal Canadiens and the Chicago Blackhawks against the New York Rangers.

With Eddie Shore back in the limelight Tuesday night, the Bruins managed to break into the victory column with an overtime 3 to 1 decision over the Blackhawks.

They won't have him tonight because his contract calls only for him to play in the home games, so the problem of whether the Bruins are a championship club when Shore is absent ought to get a solution.

HARLOW WRITES HE'LL KEEP BERT

Nov. 16, 1939.

Mr. William J. Bingham
Harvard Athletic Association
Cambridge.

Dear Bill:

"Despite the understanding that exists between us, rumors still persist that I am to leave Harvard at the end of this football season. I want to assure you again that there is no foundation for these rumors.

"I have signed a contract to remain at Harvard for several years, and I shall fulfill my contract.

"I want to thank the athletic committee for the confidence which they have in me, and also all those connected with Harvard football for the co-operation which I have received from them.

"Sincerely yours,
(Signed)
"RICHARD C. HARLOW."

Harlow's denial was issued following reports that Dr. Jack Sutherland, former Pittsburgh coach, would come to an Eastern school next year, with Harvard mentioned in the speculation.

Sea Gulls Claim Hockey Record

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 16 (AP)—The Atlantic City Sea Gulls of the Eastern Amateur Hockey League today laid claim to a new United States amateur scoring record by virtue of a 24-0 trouncing of the New York All-Stars.

Friday Deadline For Filing Hockey Contest Answers

While entries pouring in by the hundreds, the judge plan a busy week-end and the contestants are eagerly awaiting the decision of the judges in the Boston Evening American-Daily Record Bruins Cartoon Hockey contest which ended Wednesday.

It is expected that the winners of more than $400 worth of season and individual game tickets to Bruins N. H. L. battles at the Garden will be announced early next week.

The judges have started on the thousands of cartoons submitted and will stay until the winners have been decided on.

The winner will be awarded two season tickets to all the B's games at the Garden. Second and third awards will be one season ticket. Then there will be 20 prizes of two tickets each for one Bruins home game.

Entries received post-marked later than midnight, Friday, Nov. 17, will not be accepted. Back copies of the Evening American and Daily Record, in which the cartoons appeared, can be obtained at 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

So rush your entries, be sure to include all 24 cartoons and sign your name and address. Neatness and completeness in the answers will count in the final judging.

ROYALTY . . . Three beautiful Cocker spaniels who are competing with some 42 other entrants for the $1000 in prizes to be awarded the winners at Horticultural Hall tomorrow and Saturday.

45 SPANIELS COMPETE FOR $1000 IN STAKES

Forty-five of the country's most promising Cockers will compete in the $1000 Big Four Novice Stakes, a feature of the 18th annual Spaniel Specialty Show tomorrow and Saturday at Horticultural Hall.

The $1000 stakes is dogdom's biggest money prize and is being offered by the Cocker Spaniel Breeders Club of New England for the sixth year. The final judging will bring together the winners of four divisions.

Among those bidding for a Big Four triumph are O. B. Gilman of Boston, 1935 winner; Herman E. Mellenthin of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., 1936-38 winner; and Leonard J. Buck whose wife scored in 1937. Mellenthin, who won the Big Four last year with My Own Counsellor is also bringing his noted champion, My Own Brucie, this year's Morris and Essex king.

Judging will start at 11 a. m. tomorrow morning and will continue throughout the day. The evening session will be featured by the Obedience Training Exhibition starting at 8:00.

RACE BOARD SUSPENDS TRIO FROM N.H.TRACKS

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 16 (AP)—The State Racing Commission suspended three men from New Hampshire horse race tracks today, two being from New York and one from Kentucky, for what was termed:

"Action detrimental to the best interests of racing."

W. L. Phinney, commission chairman, said William Lyons of Troy, N. Y., an owner, was ruled off for nine months and Clarence Turner of Lexington, Ky., for four months for circulating literature describing the probable performances of horses in their charge.

Joseph Caulfield of Brooklyn, N. Y., was given a four months suspension for being a party, Phinney asserted, "to several deals which aroused the displeasure of the commission." He was described as a race track follower.

Ruth Has Banner Day in Field

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Nov. 16 (AP)—Babe Ruth turned on the old batting eye and helped open Maryland's fall hunting season to the tune of two turkeys (shot in flight), eight ducks and eight pheasants.

Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor bagged one turkey, seven ducks and eight pheasants. Others in the Woodmont Rod and Gun Club party included Senators Neely (D.) of West Virginia and Taft (R.) of Ohio. Sixty club hunters bagged a total of 200 pheasants, 250 ducks and 120 turkeys.

FIVE FORWARDS FAIL TO SAVE STARS' BACON

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP)—New Haven's Eagles flew to a 2 to 0 victory over the Syracuse Stars in an International-American Hockey League game tonight on two goals in the second period by Bill Summerhill on passes by Don Willson.

Using desperate measures in the effort to win their first home victory of the season, the Stars skated five forwards during the final 15 minutes of play, but Wilf Cude turned way all shots to earn the shutout.

Erickson Leads Soccer Kickers

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 16 (AP)—Springfield seems destined to annex its second New England soccer league title with the last place M. I. T. team the sole obstacle between the Maroon and the crown.

Although failing to tally last week, Erickson of Yale continues as leading individual scorer of the league with 12 goals.

Manookian Steals Show

Managoff Manookian of Chicago stole the spotlight at the Boston Arena wrestling show last night in a special bout with Jim Wright of Texas. The Chicago matman was thrown clear of the ring but leaped back into the square circle to toss his opponent with a drop kick and body slam.

In the feature bout Ben Shalom, Jewish heavyweight champ, made short work of Mayles McLain, former All-American and Haskell grid star, before 3000 fans, tossing the ex-gridder in straight falls.

Shalom pinned McLain twice in 15:45 and 3:05 with lifts and slams.

In other bouts, Gene Bowman, Chattanooga, and Ed Newman, New York, drew, 20 minutes; Frank Judson, Attleboro, won by disqualification over Joe Marsh, Chicago, 14:55; Gus Sonnenberg, Boston, and Leo Numa, Seattle, drew, 30 minutes.

Barons Leading Western Division

CLEVELAND, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Cleveland Barons took first place in the western division of the International American Hockey League with an easy 4 to 1 victory over the Providence Reds. It was their fourth straight win.

Bob Gracie, Cleveland center, counted the first goal 13 seconds after the opening face-off. All four goals were made by Cleveland's first line of Gracie, Lorne Duguid and Leroy Goldsworthy.

Conn, Lesnevich Ready for Gong

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (INS)—Billy Conn, 175-pound champion, and Gus Lesnevich, completed training for their 15-round light heavyweight title scrap in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. Each donned the mittens for the last time at the Pioneer gym.

Conn sparred seven rounds while his New Jersey challenger boxed three. Billy took on Charley Fisher and Mickey McAvoy for two rounds each and went three frames with Henry Cooper. Charley Harvey was Gus's sole spar mate.

Barney Ross, holder of two ring crowns, rates Lesnevich rather highly and advised Billy not to under-estimate his opponent.

"Anyone who can punch like Lesnevich always has a chance," said Ross. "Billy is the superior boxer, but Gus will prove dangerous."

BOOKIES' WIRES IDLE

CHICAGO, Nov. 16 (AP)—The bookies' loudspeakers were as silent as a tomb today.

In thousands of betting rooms from coast to coast the voices relaying information from the nation's race tracks were missing for the first time in many years.

Rendered inarticulate by the dissolution of Nationwide News Service, Inc., a vast wire network, the loudspeakers remained as silent testimonials to federal opposition to the bookie business.

On orders from M. L. Annenberg and his associates in Nationwide News Service, who acted because of government opposition, the flow of turf information to clients throughout the nation, Canada and Cuba was stopped last night.

Many bookies apparently viewed the development as a challenge to their ingenuity and started devising new methods of getting turf news.

Whatever method is chosen, bookmakers agreed that there would be a big drop in the amount wagered.

ARLINGTON TESTS MEDFORD

By MICHAEL GILLOOLY

Coach Fred Ostergren will concede Medford a slight edge in the backfield over his Arlington high school eleven—and note that he says "slight"—but beyond that he refuses to predict an outcome for what might prove one of the oddest set-ups of the schoolboy season.

Medford, undefeated in eight starts but twice tied, will play host to an up-and-coming Arlington outfit at the Fulton st. grounds Saturday.

There's one note particularly outstanding that might bring about an elimination of one of the three leaders in the state title chase.

Coach Tom O'Connor of the Mystics learned his football at St. Bonaventure, when Ostergren was head coach, more than 10 years ago. For three seasons, 1927, '28 and '29 O'Connor studied Ostergren's style of play.

SAME OFFENSIVES

Although both mentors have made many drastic changes since those college days, they both resort to the same basic principle. The fans, on close observation, will probably notice a similarity in the offensive and defensive tactics on Saturday.

"We have a chance of winning but you have to give that Medford team a lot of credit," says Ostergren.

"Right now we're working on Medford plays. We'll have changes and so. will they but there's still the fact that we went to the same school together.

"Still it's a bit puzzling that Medford hasn't run up higher scores. We beat Waltham in a walkaway while Medford scored a slim 7 to 0 victory. At Somerville, we were about even so there's no telling how we'll make out Saturday."

Ostergren has been especially pleased with the fine line-play of his team. Russ Isner and Ed "Cud" Tobin being especially outstanding. Isner rates with the top centers in the schoolboy ranks while Tobin can match his 185 pounds with any guard in the section.

In the backfield, Phil Preston has been Ostergren's prize as a ball carrier and blocker. When Art Blanchard, the surprise package of last year, failed to hit his expected stride, it was Preston who stepped into the breach.

Arlington's starting lineup will have Tom Connolly and Dick Grant on the ends, Bob Battis and Dunc Woodard at the tackles, Tobin and Bud Femia in the guards with Isner at center. In the backfield Blanchard will continue to call the signals for Preston, Bob Saunders and Ed Burns.

Arlington has lost only to Leominster, has tied Malden and will probably be an even bet.

MUST PAY BOXERS

AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 16 (AP)—If Maine boxing promoters and managers don't pay contestants the purses promised, they are going to lose their licenses.

ARLINGTON HIGH GO. Fred Ostergren's hard-hitting backfield quartet which will try to clip unbeaten Medford's wings Saturday. Left to right: Ed Burns, Phil Preston, Art Blanchard, Bob Saunders.

2 JUMBO BACKFIELD JOBS OPEN

Anxious to make up for last week's last-quarter let down which allowed New Hampshire to win, the Tufts gridmen are putting up such strong competition that Coach Lew Manly is having a difficult time in choosing starters for this week's game against Bowdoin.

The line will probably remain the same, but six candidates are making strong bids for the two possible backfield berths. Capt. Art Griffin and Jack West are certain starters, while Bob Patterson and Grant Curtis are fighting it out for blocking back.

Three players, Murray Kenny, Art Harrison and Grant Curtis are trying to win the nod for the other wingback. Curtis, who started last Saturday, is at a disadvantage because of an injured leg, but should that ailment mend he will probably retain his berth which he started last week for the first time.

Foremost 'Pures' In All-America's

The foremost amateur boxers of New England have sent in entries for the second of the elimination series of the American-Record New England All-America boxing tournament that takes place at the Boston Arena next Monday night.

The chance of gaining ring fame and a trip to the West Coast is paramount in the minds of the "pure" mitt wielders.

Bouts will be held in all eight open classes at championship weights, and in addition there will be two divisions for novices at 135 and 160 pounds.

These All-America tryout shows are open to all registered A. A. U. boxers in New England.

All entries must be filed with Tom Kanaly at the Arena. The desire to try for a New England All-America title is so great among New England amateurs that the committee in charge of the tournament has decided that no more post entries will be received the night of the tryout.

The winners of next week's tryout in all classes, in addition to the victors last Monday as well as those of Nov. 27 and Dec. 4, will qualify for the New England All-America finals.

Among the entries received yesterday were Tommy Luckman, Brockton, in the 112 pounds; George Dresser, South Boston, 126 pounds; Orlando Cioffi, East Boston, and Bernard Howard, Whitinsville, in the 135; Mike Cascio, Boston, and Tony Ferlisi, Woburn, in the 147, and Philip Galletto, Revere, and Fred McLean, Roxbury, in the 160 open class.

Lou Little Preparing To Upset Tulane

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—Lou Little, the large Columbia coach who carries the dampest crying towel and the finest record of upsets of anybody in football, is getting ready to spring one of the major upsets of this o rany other season come Saturday.

That's the day when Columbia's Little Lions have a date with the unbeaten mighty horde of Behemoths from Tulane.

The experts all agree the New Orleans outfit should win by three touchdowns or more but we began to doubt such an overwhelming victory when we noticed how hard Lachrymose Lou was using his crying towel today.

"It probably will be a slaughter," sobbed Lou. "Red Dawson has two lines that average 215 pounds from end to end and my one little line averages only 185 pounds. Think of it, 30 pounds to a man we're spotting them. They may run up a telephone score on us."

SOMETHING NEW

Knowing Lou of old, we paid no attention to this little matter of poundage and insisted on knowing if he had anything new to spring on the Southerners.

"Well, yes, I have," he admitted grudgingly. "We have one or two new plays that may surprise Tulane just like KF 79 once shocked Stanford in the Rose Bowl."

An historic occasion, on Jan. 1, 1934, mighty Stanford laughingly took on Little's little band of Columbians. Everybody had agreed that the Stanford behemoths would make the score whatever it liked but the final score read: Columbia 7, Stanford 0. And it was KF 79 that turned the trick.

ANOTHER UPSET

Another year Stanford brought an overwhelmingly favorite team here to get their revenge and Lou had a little play cooked up where one of his little Columbians ran a kick-off back for a touchdown without a hand being laid on the runner and the final score fo that one read: Columbia 7, Stanford 0.

And only a blocked punt prevented his little squad of iron men from scoring an upset over Cornell 10 days ago. That was the game in which 10 of his starters played the whole game against the giants in red.

Broadway bookies, wary of the craftiness of Little, the miracle man, are laying only 4 to 1 on Tulane today when, they admit, the odds really should be 20 to 1.

KERN SHIFTS TECH FOR PURPLE SCRAP

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 16—One change in the line and another in the backfield were indicated by Head Coach Bill Kern, of Carnegie Tech, as he prepared his Tartans for their Saturday engagement with Holy Cross at Worcester, Mass.

Joe Betz was moved up from the second team to take over the left end position, and Frank Jordan took over the first string left halfback job, Merlyn Condit, erstwhile regular at that position, shifting over to right halfback in place of the injured George Muha.

Whether these changes will stick for Saturday's game depends upon the rounding into physical condition of Karl Striegel, veteran left end, and Muha. Striegal has not played since the Notre Dame game, when he suffered his leg injury. Hope has been given up that Chris Moersch, regular quarterback, also a casualty of the Notre Dame game, will be able to play against the Crusaders. Chang Dunn will likely be the starting quarterback, with Pete Moroz his alternate.

KERN BACKS WEAKENED

With Muha's ability to play doubtful, Kern is hard pressed for halfbacks. With Condit moved to right halfback and Moroz scheduled to be a quarterback, there are no other left halfbacks available. Condit, Jordano and Moroz were all originally left halfbacks. It is likely that Condit will have to be a 60-minute player on Saturday, moving over to left halfback with the second team to pair with Wally Ingalls, the reserve right halfback.

All of Tech's practice sessions this week have seen desperate efforts to bolster the team's offense. Carnegie remains one of the strongest defensive teams in the country. Not a touchdown has been scored through the first team line this season.

The only team to score on a running play against the Tartans this year was New York University, and that came against the reserves. Notre Dame tallied by recovering a fumble in the air and running for a touchdown, and Pitt scored on a 55-yard forward pass

The Plaid forward wall, however, has not been nearly as effective in mopping up for the backs on offense as it was in 1938. However, the team has given several indications of its latent power, and has constantly threatened to have one explosive offense game in its system.

Carnegie-Holy Cross games have always been rugged defensive battles, but none has failed to produce at least one outstanding thrill.

The Skibos will leave Pittsburgh at 5:30 p. m. tonight, and will be quartered in seclusion outside Worcester until game time.

Ronnie Cahill Fails To Report for Practice

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 16 (AP)—Ronnie Cahill, Holy Cross' star halfback, continued absent from practise as the Crusaders drilled for this week's game with Carnegie Tech.

While Coach Joe Sheeketski still hopes that Cahill's injured leg will mend sufficiently to permit him to play, he spent much time grooming a pair of sophomores, Tom Sullivan and Alex Nahigian, to replace his injured ace.

Three other H. C. regulars—Titus, center; Whelan, quarterback, and Barry, end—are definitely lost for this week's game.

St. Anselm at Peak For Providence Game

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 16 (AP)—St. Anselm College football team will be at peak strength for the Providence College game here Saturday, Coach Cleo O'Donnell announced today. The contest will bring the Hawks' season to a close.

Codmans, Saints Duel for Pennant

The Boston Park League pennant, equivalent to the semi-pro grid championship of Boston, will be the prize at which the Codman A. A. of Dorchester and East Boston's St. Lazarus Club will shoot on next Sunday afternoon at Fenway Park, beginning at 2:30.

Due to the tremendous throngs which have been turning out all season for the Sunday grid presentations directed by Bill Mullen, and the seating inadequacy of both the Codman and St. Lazarus home fields, Park Commissioner Long secured the use of the Red Sox ball yard from Eddie Collins yesterday morning.

NO ADMISSION CHARGE

No admission will be charged, and no charges of any kind will be made to fans attending the game, and in addition to the championship joust a seven-minute football game for the Midget championship of Boston will be conducted, which promises to reveal some real football finesse in the five to ten-year-old class.

The East Boston club is the most powerful pigskin outfit that has ever represented the island in the Park League and Coach Jack Sacco's three-year building program in which he has this year reached the position to which he has been pointing, has come about as witnessed by the seasonal record of five wins and one tie with a total points scored of 81 for the Saints, to their opponents' 12, which the Saints have established.

CODMANS BEAT MERCHANTS

The title battle in the East division was more bitterly fought with Codmans making certain of the honors only last Sunday when they shut out the until then undefeated Mattapan Merchants 6 to 0 through a Cadigan and Munichello touchdown parade, and this same Cadigan, whose proficient toe has earned him the sobriquet of "coffin corner" Cadigan will handle the booting duties on Sunday for the Codmans, with Settino, a great defensive back and Al Munchello, bucker, in the starting attack quartet.

Dartmouth Backfield Improved

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 16 (AP)—Dartmouth's first and second teams worked against Cornell formations in a long contact drill and Coach Earl Blaik expressed himself as "very pleased" over the results.

Defensively the Indians had only spasmodic success against the scrubs' version of the Cornell attack but offensively the first two Dartmouth units clicked with the new plays Blaik has been reserving for the undefeated and powerful Ithacans.

Captain Whit Miller worked at right end and seemed to be a certain starter this week. Blaik followed the defensive performances of his backfields closely and noted an improvement over last week's Princeton game.

Both the first and second teams piled up considerable yardage against the scrubs' imitation of Cornell's defensive tactics. Bomber Bill Hutchinson and Bu Hayden were the first team standouts and little Ted Arico, who understudies Hutchinson, accounted for most of the second team's deep advances.

Stiff Drill for Rams On Pass Defense

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—Hearing that Ed Heffernan, outstanding passer on the Pacific Coast last fall, was back in shape and ready to do his feats of legerdemain for St. Mary's Saturday in front of a New York throng, Coach Jim Crowley gave his Fordham Rams a long session of pass defense.

He used two complete backfields during a dummy scrimmage against the Gaels' aerial attack. The St. Mary's delegation was due in town early tomorrow on a special train.

Red Raiders Drill On New Formations

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP)—The running and passing game of Colgate's Red Raiders came in for plenty of attention here as Coach Andy Kerr drilled the squad on special plays and formations to be used against the Orange at Syracuse Saturday.

Hornets in Tie With Ramblers

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16 (AP)—With 26 seconds to play in the extra period, the Pittsburgh Hornets scored a goal to gain a 2-2 tie with the Philadelphia Ramblers in an International-American League hockey game before a crowd of 3000.

Mickey Brouillard lifted the puck over the shoulders of Goal Tender Bert Gardiner, thus depriving the Ramblers of a victory that would have been their first in five games they have played since the start of the season.

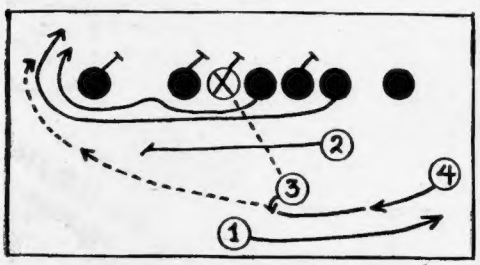
Mamie Alexander Wins Hound Chase

PADUCAH, Ky., Nov. 15 (AP)—An eastern hound won the National Foxhunters Association's Futurity Chase championship.

Mamie Alexander, owned by E. A. Fiske, Rumford, R. I., gave an all-around exhibition in the third and final cast to come from behind to win $500 and the coveted honor for her master.

Mechanics, Brighton Beehive Winners

Brighton High was a bit closer to the Boston District Grid title today when they trounced South Boston 13 to 0 at National League Field. Mechanic Arts the only other team to whip Southie scored a 29 to 13 victory over Roxbury Memorial.



ONE OF WILY BO'S TRICKSTERS

Bo McMillin at Indiana has made effective use of this fake reverse, which starts from a single wingback formation. The ball is passed to back 3, who fakes it to No. 1 as he swings past, but instead he hands it to back 4, who continues around left end. A tackle and guard pull out for interference. (The dotted line shows the path of the ball and ball-carrier.)

TRIS SEES NEW LOOP BIG HELP TO MAJORS

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 16 (AP)—The new national professional indoor baseball league, which begins play next week, was described today as "frankly an experiment" with an eye to a possible new source of big league hard ball players.

President Tris Speaker and Eugene "Rubbles" Hargraves, manager of the Cincinnati club, agreed that while a hard ball player cannot go to indoor ball, an indoor player can go the other way.

"We hope the league will develop into a proving ground for big-time ball players," said Speaker, one-time pilot of the Cleveland Indians.

"It's an experiment, of course, but Tommy Henrich and Ken Keltner are products of the sport and they're making good in the big-time."

William O. Mashburn, head of the Cincinnati club, outlined a program whereby each team would develop farm clubs of its own as well as seek local talent.

The league also includes New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Brooklyn, Cleveland, Chicago and St. Louis.

2 Eli Blockers Sidelined by Injuries

Tiger Squad Sent Through Stiff Drill

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 16 (AP)—Princeton's rampant Tiger, eager for a victory over Yale to complete its domination of football's "Big Three," went through an intensive drill against a constantly changing encounter with the Bulldog.

Passing and kicking were the order of the day. For a half hour Coach Tad Wieman had Stan Pearson heaving Eli passes in a dummy drill against a constntly changing varsity backfield and skeleton line.

Smooth as Silk

ROUGH AND RUGGED were the football games of the '70's—entirely different from the smooth-as-silk teamwork of today. Rough and rugged were the whiskies, too, nothing like the mild and mellow taste of my Kessler's Private Blend. Try my Kessler's, the modern man's whiskey. It's light, throat-easy, "smooth-as-silk."

Stubbs Back With Olympics

Boston Olympic hopes for victory at the Arena on Saturday when Joe Stubbs, ex-Harvard star, came out for practice. Coach Hago Harrington is positive that the big Newton veteran will take his place at the blue line against the invading Verdun Bulldogs.

Stubbs was unable to play in the second tilt with the Quebec Castors last Sunday because of a painful back injury, and his presence was sadly missed. With the return of Stubbs to his regular post, the Olympics will offer the defense that carried them to 2 victories in 4 starts, a new high in early season Boston history.

With four games already played, the top scorers appear to be the same lads that carried most of the burden last season. Cliff Thompson of Stoneham is leading the parade with four goals and one assist. Gerry Desrosiers is in the runner-up position with two goals and two assists.

Brown Backfield Minus Two Stars

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 16 (AP)—The pressing football problem at Brown still is one concerning backfield replacements for Capt. John McLaughry and "Bonea" Stepczyk. Both were hurt in the Yale game and both probably will be sidelined for next Saturday's Bruin engagement with Connecticut.

It was indicated that the Bruin starting backfield quartet for Saturday's game will comprise Charlie Blount, Dick Hugh, Ernie Savignano and Lou Duesing, all with major game experience.

Krupp Plant Floats $16,000,000 Loan

BERLIN, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Friedrich Krupp Company of Essen, Germany's largest munitions maker, has floated a 4½ per cent loan of 40,000,000 marks ($16,000,000) to finance plant enlargement. The loan is to run 18 years.

Underdog Rating Satisfies Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP)—Although rated a 2 to 1 underdog locally in Saturday's game with Colgate, Syracuse's football squad appeared to relish its position.

Ossie Solem followed schedule by ending contact work and confined most of the session to checking defensive assignments. The attack already has shown considerable improvement, with Dick Ranger and Leo Canale the chief ballcarriers.

Shore Returns To Indians

Eddie Shore, Bruin defenseman, today returned to Springfield to tinker with his Indians after denying that he intended to rejoin the cast of the world champions until next month.

Shore, who paced the Bruins to their first win in three starts Tuesday against Chicago, said:

"I'll bedown next Tuesday for that game with the Canadiens but I can't promise beyond that. I definitely will not be down when my Indians are playing. I doubt whether you'll see me again until Dec. 15, and even then I don't know how often."

Shore, owner-player-manager of the Indians, was not scheduled to show with the Bruins until Dec. 15 but responded to a hurry call when the champs dropped their first two games.

Harvard Gives Tom Healey Burr Award

Tom Healey of Worcester, star in baseball, football and brainwork, today was named Harvard's outstanding scholar-athlete and awarded the Francis E. Burr scholarship, coveted college honor.

The scholarship is awarded in memory of Francis H. Burr, '90 and goes to the senior combining Burr's qualities of "character leadership scholarship and athletic ability."

Healey a graduate of Worcester academy entered Harvard on a Harvard Club scholarship. He has been one of the college's top ranking scholars ever since matriculation and has held the class of 1867 and the Elnathan Pratt scholarships.

WALSH P. G. A. HEAD

VETERAN ICE TEAM AT B. U.

Working out three mornings a week under Coach Waylie Vaughan, the Terrier hockey team is well studded with veterans and plenty of promising newcomers.

That first line of Co-Captains Joe Conaty and Ed Richardson, together with Pete Brown that worked intact during the last eight games, is again available.

The only major losses from last year are Capt. Al Carvelli and Johnny Walker. Carvelli who was one of the best college centers in the country last year until he broke his collarbone and retired at midseason, is now graduated and playing for the Olympics.

Johnny Walker was the goalie who never played before last season but who came along so rapidly that he was a standout during the last few games.

Coach Vaughan, however, has Roger Powers of Dorchester and Henry Sullivan of Rindge Tech, a pair of promising goalies available and they should fill in nicely.

The only thing to mar a perfect picture is the loss of three of last year's freshmen. Bob Hall, frosh star from Rindge Tech and Dave Bott, Arlington goalie, are both on academic probation while Bob McAuliffe, a promising wing from Rindge Tech has dropped out of school for financial reasons.

Pro Football Big Time Business

CINCINNATI, Nov. 16 (INS)—Professional football is the fastest growing major sport and since its inception has expanded into a $6,000,000,000 business, said Carl L. Storck, National Pro League president, today

ENCHANTED ON TOP

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 16 (AP)—Coming from behind in the last sixteenth, Enchanted won the feature six-furlong sprint at Tanforan track.

Two Violet Backs On Injured List

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Violets of New York University prepped for their game with undefeated Georgetown without Eddie Boell and Jack Barmak, two regular backs, and Coach Mal Stevens said they probably would be missing Saturday, too.

In their places were Henry Feil and Art Schneider. Practice was devoted mostly to defense against Georgetown formations.
